Major research interests

Discourse structure and function. Forms and functions of narrative; functions of repetition in discourse and their implications for linguistic theory; rhetorical discourse; discourse style in the southern US; the individual in linguistic theory, social and individual resources for style in Texas women's public discourse.

Sociolinguistics. Regional/social variation in discourse structure and strategy; interactional sociolinguistics; ethnography of communication; gender and regional variation in discourse style; methodology in qualitative sociolinguistics; current work on rhetorical functions of place-linked ways of speaking, representations of dialect, history and social correlates of Pittsburgh speech.

Rhetoric. Argument in interaction; linguistic stance and rhetorical ethos; revised and edited my sister's doctoral thesis on journal-keeping for posthumous publication; co-edited a volume on discourse analysis in rhetorical studies.
