Dear Professor Strandburg:

Please find enclosed a copy of your article, Patent Citation Networks Revisited: Signs of a Twenty-First Century Change? This is the last opportunity you have to review the piece before it is sent to the printer. If you have any changes, please note them by hand. This edit is due by Monday, April 13. If you mail the piece instead of scanning and e-mailing a PDF, please allow time for delivery so we will receive the hard copy by that date.

We are very pleased with the shape of the article, but I have a few final notes to clarify:

1. Please send a copy of Figure 2 with “k” under the x-axis. I only have photo files of the graphs, so I am unable to change the x-axis label from “in-degree” to “k.”
2. In note 20, I added a citation to Andrew Chin’s piece with a parenthetical. I think it is the best example of an empirical study which observes and quantifies the effects of technological and doctrinal changes. Please let me know if you would like me to add a citation to any other article from the symposium.
3. Should there be a space between “k” and “l” in $A(k,l)$? The spacing is inconsistent throughout. Please let me know if there should always be a space or never be a space.
4. “Nonobvious” and “power law” were inconsistently hyphenated. It now appears without a hyphen throughout the piece. Please let me know if you have any objections.
5. If you have a problem with the layout or size of any of the figures, please let us know.

Do not hesitate to contact me with any questions or concerns you may have. Once again, we are very pleased to be publishing your article, and I have enjoyed working with you throughout the publication process. I look forward to receiving your changes to the piece by April 13.

Sincerely,

Melissa Michaud
