RESEARCH ACTIVITIES

My research is characterised by a common theme of information for decision making. I have focused on the conceptualization, education, governance, valuation and behavioural aspects of the regulation, interpretation, and use of accounting information at the market and individual levels. Recent research integrates topics across the disciplines of accounting, governance, family business and valuation.

- Exemplars of current research:
 - Family firms: Does family involvement and participation make a difference?
 - The constitution of internal audit quality: Stakeholder judgments and factors impacting quality
 - Does good corporate governance enhance accruals quality during the global financial crisis?
 - Dual auditors, Sharia law and information asymmetry: The market for audit services in Kuwait
 - Performance of family firms during the global financial crisis: Does governance matter?
 - Predicting exam performance: A formative assessment approach in a blended learning environment
- Doctoral research: explored the perception of control by Australian and US executives. Different control perceptions can result in the preparation and interpretation of vastly different information sets. Perceptual differences impact directly on economic decision making including valuation.
- Earlier work: current cost accounting, positive accounting, contingency theory, takeovers and insider trading.
