My publications and their abstracts are generally available on <http://ssrn.com/author=345891> and on http://works.bepress.com/seth\_barrett\_tillman/.

I am happy to answer inquiries in regard to how I calculated my citation counts and also to suggest how others should fairly count citations.

Write me at: sbarretttillman@yahoo.com.

<sup>i</sup> Where multiple versions of otherwise identical journal articles cite a Tillman-authored publication, only the most recent version of the article is counted. Where multiple versions or editions of otherwise identical reports, books, etc. cite a Tillman-authored publication, only one version or edition of the report, book, etc. is counted.

However, a report, book, etc. initially published under one author's name, but republished under another author's name or in a new language will be counted twice.

Likewise, an article published in a journal, and then republished in a book (or vice versa) will be counted twice. Similarly, a conference paper later published in a journal, in the same or similar form, is counted twice.

Finally, each separate section of a multi-section treatise citing a Tillman-authored publication is counted individually. Such treatises include: (i) Rotunda & Nowak's Treatise on Constitutional Law: Substance and Procedure, and (ii) Forte & Spalding's The Heritage Guide to the Constitution.

<sup>ii</sup> A citation is “Extant” if a draft is publicly available, even if not in final form. Drafts posted on SSRN are “Extant.”

<sup>iii</sup> 2013 and 2014 are my two most productive years for citations.

<sup>iv</sup> A citation is “Forthcoming”: (i) if I have seen a draft version (which is not publicly available); or (ii) if I have received substantial personal assurance from the third-party author that his or her publication will include one or more citations to a Tillman-authored publication (or will acknowledge me personally). By contrast, a citation is “Extant” if the third-party publication (or draft publication) has already been printed, published, or placed on line (in final or draft form). (When I report citation totals, I do not include citations in the “Forthcoming” category.)

<sup>v</sup> A citation is “Expected or Planned” if I have good cause to believe when the publication is published it will include one or more citations to a Tillman-authored publication. (When I report citation totals, I do not include citations in this “Expected or Planned” category.)

<sup>vi</sup> See supra notes iv & v. Counting all “Extant” citations. Citation totals do not include citations in the “Forthcoming” category. Citation totals do not include citations in the “Expected or Planned” category.

<sup>vii</sup> See supra notes iv & v. Again, citation totals do not include citations in the “Forthcoming” category. Citation totals do not include citations in the “Expected or Planned” category. Finally, third-party working papers which have not yet been accepted for publication or published at a journal are categorized as non-journal citations.
