Abstract

Abstract: Reference Management tools offer an easy way of finding relevant literature, collecting references, organizing them in a database, and insert citations works in a manuscript with proper citation style. Most of the new Reference Management tools provide facility to connect with other researchers that you can’t find on other platforms. A Web-based reference management provide easier collaboration and use across multiple devices and assist you to improve publication visibility.

Research Tools Mind Map

Part 2: Writing a paper -> Reference Management

Why use a reference management tool

• Reference management tools saves time for researchers and help them work more efficiently;
• Reference management tools help scholars to create and manage their lists of references for research projects;
• Reference management tools should be tightly integrated into user’s overall research workflows;
• Reference management tools are designed to organize citations into specific formats for the preparation of manuscripts and bibliographies.
• Reference management tools is needed to facilitate sharing and collaboration.
All Citation Management products have these basic features:

• Gather and transfer references from databases/resources/webpages into your personal research database

• Organize, annotate, sort and search your references, images and PDFs

• Insert in-text citations and reference lists into documents in a wide variety of styles (MLA, APA, etc)

• Create stand alone bibliographies in a wide variety of styles

66 To find out whether scholarly workflows are changing we released a 8-12 min. graphical worldwide survey charting research tool usage. It permits testing many types of hypotheses regarding the relation between tool usage and field/country/academic role/career length. Please have a look and let me know what you think of it. I wonder what you would like to know regarding the use of (web based) research/communication tools.

Management Science / Operations

With the increasing use of information and communications technology (ICT), researchers are able to use computer software tools to find, organize, manipulate, analyze, and share relevant information. However, there are hundreds of such tools to select from, for various research-related uses. I have collected over 700 tools that can help researchers do their work efficiently. It is assembled as an interactive Web-based mind map, titled Research Tools, which is updated periodically.

Zotero is the only research tool that automatically senses content, allowing you to add it to your personal library with a single click. Whether you're searching for a preprint on arXiv.org, a journal article from JSTOR, a news story from the New York Times, or a book from your university library catalog, Zotero has you covered with support for thousands of sites.
How do I import records from EndNote?

Many people coming to Zotero already have extensive collections stored in other reference management software. The following information describes how to make the move from EndNote to Zotero, but the same basic steps apply to many other reference management systems that can export to the RIS format.

Exporting Your Library from EndNote

Installing RIS Output Style

Zotero can't directly import "en'' EndNote libraries, so the first step is exporting your EndNote library for import into Zotero. The best export format for this is RIS. You may already have the "Reference Manager (RIS) Export" style available in EndNote, but we still recommend that you obtain the latest version of this style from the EndNote Output Style repository. Once you download the style file, place it in your <EndNote folder>\Styles directory (overwriting any existing file with the same name). Alternatively, you may follow style installation directions provided by EndNote.

If you have EndNote open, restart it at this point.

Abstract: The number of publications is the first criteria for assessing an author's productivity. However, the main measurement for author productivity is visibility and citations are typically related to the paper's visibility. In between article visibility and the number of citations is involved two researchers who are using publication marketing tools.
