September 12, 2015

Dusk and Dawn and Drops of Dew, an update of a Prose/Poem 9/12/15

Charles Kay Smith, University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Available at: https://works.bepress.com/charleskaysmith/157/
May Lovely Moments Grace Your Day

In very early morn as sun
first pierces through the grey sparkling leaves and blades of grass
all wet with nightly dew.

Earth incandesces with a dazzle.
The more intense the sun,
dew evaporates more quickly,
more fleeting but brighter is its sheen.

Another moment not to miss
when day and night hang in the balance
and, briefly, earth’s both light and dark.
Time seems paused and all is still.

May such moments grace your day
and chase sad thoughts away.