University of Massachusetts Amherst

From the SelectedWorks of Donald Maddox

2000

Fictions of Identity in Medieval France

Donald Maddox, University of Massachusetts - Amherst

Available at: https://works.bepress.com/donald_maddox/1/Fictions
of Identity
in Medieval
France

Donald Maddox
Paperback Re-issue

In this study of vernacular French narrative from the twelfth century through the later Middle Ages, Donald Maddox considers the construction of identity in a wide range of fictions. He focuses on crucial encounters, widespread in medieval literature, in which characters are informed about fundamental aspects of their own circumstances and selfhood. These always arresting and highly significant moments of "specular" encounter are examined in numerous Old and Middle French romances, hagiographic texts, epics, and brief narratives. Maddox discloses the key role of identity in an original reading of the Lais of Marie de France as a unified collection, as well as in Arthurian literature, fictions of the courtly tryst, genealogies, and medieval family romance. The study offers many new perspectives on the poetic and cultural implications of identity as an imaginary construct during the long formative period of French literature.

COVER DESIGN: JACKIE TAYLOR
Contents

 Acknowledgments \hspace{1cm} page xi
 List of abbreviations \hspace{1cm} xiii

Introduction: Identity and encounter in medieval literature
1 The specular encounter in fictions of reciprocity: the Lais of Marie de France
2 The specular encounter in Arthurian romance
3 From encounter to specular encounter in fictions of the courtly tryst
4 The specular encounter in fictions of lineage
Afterword: The specular encounter in perspective
Appendix

Notes
Select bibliography
Index

ix