TRANSNATIONALIZATION ON THE
TECHNIQUE OF ASSISTED HUMAN REPRODUCTION

EDNA RAQUEL HOGEMANN

Available at: https://works.bepress.com/ednaraquel_hogemann/1/
TRANSNATIONALIZATION ON THE TECHNIQUE OF ASSISTED HUMAN REPRODUCTION

ABSTRACT

This paper's purpose is to present a reflective analysis about the process of transnationalization in which the technique of assisted human reproduction has been going to the extent that such a procedure has been revealed as a true "fertility tourism", offered through packages for those people who have financial conditions, but cannot through natural means to realize the dream of membership. Through the dialectic method of discourse, promoting the comparison of the thought of many authors who focus on issues such as globalization, commodification of human and technical exacerbation detriment of humans and their interpersonal relations, the author seek to introduce issues that are the order of day with respect to this global market arising from the tremendous advances reproductive techniques in a society marked by economic interests, it turns much more to the consumer and considers the human being as an additional asset to be sold, since its conception. The author acknowledge that they cease for tourism human reproduction is a trade that is worth of human frailty, because relying one of the most intimate aspects of life: the desire to be a mother or father or ultimately, the perpetuation of the species.

Keywords: transnationalization; assisted reproduction; trade

Author:

Edna Raquel Hogemann
UNESA-UniRio/Rio de Janeiro – BRASIL

CV: Lawyer, professor of Law School of the Federal University of the State of Rio de Janeiro (UniRio) and University Estácio de Sá/RJ(UNESA), member of the Law and Society Association.
Place of work: Law School of the Federal University of the State of Rio de Janeiro (UniRio).

Address: Rua Marechal Deodoro, 61, Bairro 25 de Agosto, Duque de Caxias, Rio de Janeiro, Brasil, CEP 25071-190

Email: ershogemann@gmail.com.br
Tel.:55-21-95383223