Preparing Teachers to Teach Black Males

Edward Earl Bell
Preparing Teachers to Teach Black Males

Dr. Ed Bell
Shaw University, School of Education
October 17, 2012
Let’s Be Honest: You have an overwhelming responsibility. The future of a race/gender can rest on your teaching style and your everlasting commitment in the classroom.
Teaching is an honorable profession; it requires study, love, and passion for all students. The nation’s classrooms must be led by innovative and ingenious teachers who will lead students toward excellence and global competitiveness.
As educators, you must do what you can to stop the school-to-prison pipeline—the New Jim Crow—by keeping all students in school, engaged, and graduating!
The Biggest Challenge To You!
Classroom Management
Be Aware of Classroom Disruptions
What is needed?

In addition to...
Makings of an Effective Teacher

Cultural

Academic

Social
Cultural Disposition

- Student/Family
- Excellence
- Role Model
- Expectation
Academic Readiness

- Develop your skill/talents
- Become a life-long learner
- Know your content
- Demand excellence without excuse
Black Male Realities

Academic Failure
Incarceration
Suspensions
Graduation Rates
Teach as if you are teaching President Obama’s daughters.