PRIMO is a means to promote and share peer-reviewed instructional materials created by librarians to teach people about discovering, accessing, ethically using and evaluating information in networked environments. The Committee hopes that publicizing selective, high-quality resources will help librarians to respond to the educational challenges posed by still-emerging digital technologies.

Title: English 100: College Writing: Library Instruction
Authors: Travis Sleaton, Accuracy, Susan Goedecke, additional contributors from LMU Libraries Department
URL: http://library.lmu.edu/ENG100
Description: The English 100 LIBGuide is an interactive introduction to the research process. It consists of five modules. 1. narrows a topic and working it into a research question, 2. selecting keywords, 3. understanding key differences between the Internet and Library resources, 4. finding books, 5. finding articles. Students download the English 100 library research worksheet and work their way through all five modules of the LIBGuide, completing each corresponding section of the worksheet as they go. Students can browse through topical and idea generators to choose a topic of interest, and use additional keyword tools to further explore their topic. Furthermore, they can view enhanced videos during module 1 that illustrate key Internet concepts. Usually students receive a brief demonstration from a librarian on each module, but the modules were also designed so they can be completed independently. A rubric is included for grading the worksheet.
