B. Statement of contribution to curriculum development

MIE 113 Introduction to Mechanical and Industrial Engineering

- I revised this class to make it theme-based, with a theme of Energy and the Environment. I put together all new lectures, developed a project and a set of weekly assignments.

MIE 754: Economic Decision Making

- This class was completely re-tooled to provide the graduate students with the skills and knowledge they need to apply economic analysis to research topics in IEOR as well as in ME. The class provides a solid grounding in economic analysis from an optimization point of view. It is a very demanding and rigorous class. We cover topics such as the theory of the firm, the theory of the market, monopoly, game theory, oligopoly, decision making under uncertainty, options theory, and asymmetric information, as well as the traditional topic of the time value of money. The students work in teams to apply what they learn in a term project.

MIE 686: Multi-Criteria Decision Making

- This class was revised to focus on applying Decision Analysis methods to decisions with multiple criteria. Topics covered include structuring decision problems; probability concepts; decision trees and value of information; utility theory; non-inferior sets and stochastic dominance; and multi-attribute value and utility functions. The central focus of the class was on applying the concepts to a real decision problem. This class was attended by a wide variety of students, both graduates and undergraduates, from IE, ME, SOM, and ECE.
