Standard 606
Interpretation 606-2

The appropriate mixture of collection formats depends on the needs of the library and its clientele.
ABA Instructions – Question 3-6

• Electronic resources present new concepts of ownership and access to law library materials in ways that are not readily apparent to library users whether they are in the library or offsite.
However, the law library remains responsible for insuring access to electronic resources in accordance with Standard 606 and its Interpretations.
Questions 3 and 6 make a distinction between ownership and control over an electronic title which the library has purchased or over which it has otherwise assumed responsibility (Q. 3) and access to electronic resources which are licensed or linked to by the library.
Why the Distinction?

According to the instructions it is because:

• the library has no control over the electronic resources and
• accurate and consistent title level counts would be unreliable
This view of complete control is seen in Instructions for Q. 3

Count only titles that are purchased or titles over which the library has complete control.
The example the questionnaire uses to illustrate complete control:

e.g. a government document that has been downloaded onto the library’s local server.
This means that you cannot count:

- Marcive’s Document’s Without Shelves.
Documents Without Shelves provides libraries like yours an automatic way to receive MARC records containing the URL/PURL addresses of government documents on the web. You will receive hundreds of new records customized for your local system automatically every month.

If you load these records into an Online Public Access Catalog with the ability to launch directly from a URL/PURL address to the website, your patrons will be able to hotlink directly to the full text.

To see a list of literature available, including a detailed description of Documents Without Shelves, click here.

For a file of six sample records, click here. Note that the records are in MARC format. The sample includes records originally cataloged in paper and also available in other physical formats. A serial record is included. All records have 856 fields which link to the actual document. We can customize the records according to your specifications.

For more information, please contact Joan Chapa at jchapa@marcive.com or call her at 1-800-531-7678.
Yet Marcive provides:

- Regular monthly updates that contain new titles, changes in urls and a list of titles to delete if they are no longer available.

- It meets the ability to provide accurate and consistent title level counts.
For us it also means that we won’t be able to count:

Patron Driven Acquisition

Patron Driven Acquisition is a purchasing model that ensures usage of every eBook you acquire. Through this model, your users have access to a selection of eBooks from NetLibrary. Users have an option to view the selected titles but your purchases are made only when a specific title has been accessed. Patron Driven Acquisition ensures you have the titles your users need.

With Patron Driven Acquisition, you define your overall collection development strategy and maintain complete control over the types of titles available to your users. A profile for each collection dictates what type of content you'll make available, through specific definitions such as LCC/DDC ranges, subject headings, publication date ranges, publishers and price ranges per title.

Maintain complete control of your collection
Because you've set the overall strategy through your profile, you maintain complete control of your collection. Users simply select specific titles within the defined collection parameters—through their accesses. If you have a limited budget, you can also set a predefined spending limit for your Patron Driven Acquisition. Once you hit your limit, automatic access is disabled. An OCLC service representative will then contact you to help explore your options.

Patron Driven Acquisition benefits

- Easy acquisition—it's automatic
Ebooks Corporation Launches EBL

In collaboration with leading university and research libraries and major academic publishers, Ebooks Corporation recently launched Ebook Library (EBL), a new ebook lending platform that delivers a rapidly expanding catalog of ebooks to academic and research libraries.

EBL aims to extend digital lending capabilities, enable greater availability of books to greater number of students and deliver real cost savings and convenience to libraries and book publishers.

EBL draws on extensive experience in print and digital publishing, and on advice from respected members of the library, publishing and technology communities. The result is a new approach to ebook lending that integrates seamlessly with library workflows, provides an intuitive interface for flexible purchase and lending.
