Politics of remembering

Thongkholal Haokip, Jawaharlal Nehru University
The conviction that oral traditions and customs can be 'frozen' into written text is highly problematic

Although the Manipur uprising of 1891 has been widely commemorated in the state, the Kuki uprising of 1891-1917 still has no place in public memory

Politics of remembering

The Australian government plans to make several changes to compulsory voting rules in the state of Queensland in a bid to increase participation in the national election. The changes include enfranchising voters in northern and remote areas, as well as allowing for a single-use plastic in any form of documentation. The AICU has signalled it will oppose the changes, saying they are opposed to Australia's commitment to the Paris Agreement.