COURSE DETAILS

I. COURSE DESCRIPTION

The Renaissance was a period of increasing cross-cultural contacts as a result of European expansion into various parts of the globe. This seminar examines some of these encounters by exploring early signs of modern ethnography on the island of Hispaniola, New Spain, Brazil, and Peru in the late fifteenth to the early seventeenth centuries. Our fundamental task is to critically engage with descriptions of Amerindian cultures made by Spanish, Portuguese, Flemish, German, French, and Italian writers and artists. To achieve this goal we will be analyzing an array of primary sources: letters, relations, reports, histories, codices, drawings, and engravings. In particular, we are interested in uncovering early modern ideas of civilization and barbarism along with cultural diversity and diffusion through representations of indigenous writing systems, customs, rituals, clothing, and societal organization. Although this seminar focuses on how Europeans represented the “other” they encountered in the New World, several weeks are also devoted to mestizo and indigenous appropriations of Renaissance ethnography.

II. COURSE REQUIREMENTS AND EVALUATION

1. SEMINARS

This is a seminar course, which means that you need to come prepared to class on a weekly basis. Each seminar will be roughly three hours long (with a break at the half-way point) and you will be responsible for the following:

- Viewing and analyzing the assigned images
- Reading and reflecting upon the required readings
- Attending weekly seminars
- Participating generously
- Giving seminar presentations

Your overall seminar grade will be evaluated based upon the following four interrelated elements:

- Attendance
- Minute round
- Participation
- Seminar presentations

ATTENDANCE is mandatory for all students for every seminar and only proper excuses will be considered acceptable reasons for not attending. Every missed seminar is an automatic zero unless you communicate with the instructor before the beginning of the seminar.

MINUTE ROUND is an opening exercise at the beginning of every seminar in which every student will briefly share his/her reactions, questions, problems, and insights into the weekly readings and images. These carefully pre-crafted statements will both prepare and guide the larger group in discussion.

PARTICIPATION in weekly seminars means reading the required reading, viewing the assigned images, and sharing what you have learned with everyone else; it does not mean giving long discourses with the aim of racking up points. You need to respect your fellow students by giving concise responses that edify the group and provide others with the opportunity to share their opinions. Remember that listening is an important skill, but one that does not help others to learn about the topic under discussion. For a detailed description of how your overall seminar grade is tallied see the “Guide to the Evaluation of Seminar Participation” posted on Sakai.

SEMINAR PRESENTATIONS (10 minutes) are an opportunity for you to critically engage with one of the supplementary readings from weekly seminars. In the first week you will sign up for the readings of your choosing and then provide a ten minute presentation on the selected article or book chapter during seminar. Your presentation will provide a review of the author’s general argument and use of evidence together with your own assessment of his/her work. You are responsible for giving one seminar presentation throughout the course.

2. “ETHNOGRAPHIC” REPORT #1: CULTURAL RELATIVITY

i. Description and Purpose

The first assignment of this course is an “ethnographic report” based upon your own field notes in a shopping centre of your choosing. You need to imagine that you are a semi-sedentary man or woman from the Amazonian jungle who was forcefully brought to Canada in 2008. After learning how to read and write you began to record some of your experiences of Canadian life in a weekly journal. One of your entries deals with your first impressions of a shopping centre in which you described the people (facial features, hairstyles, clothing, makeup, body art, piercings) and their social interactions (salutations, gestures, sounds, physical contact, gender roles). In order to write this assignment you need to devote a few hours circling the corridors and stores of a given shopping centre in southern Ontario. Spend some time on the benches and in the food court and record some of your observations. The purpose of this assignment is to recognize two elements of ethnography: (1) that our understanding of others is filtered through our own cultural lens, and (2) that cultural styles and practices are relative in that what may appear normal to us is strange for others.

3. “ETHNOGRAPHIC” REPORT #2: REPRESENTATIONAL GO-BETWEENS

i. Description and Purpose

The second assignment of this course is an “ethnographic report” on Hans Staden’s description of the Tupinambá in Brazil. Eve M. Duffy and Alida C. Metcalf suggest that Staden acted as a “representational go-between” when he penned his True History back in Germany in 1557. What is a “representational go-between” and how trustworthy was Hans Staden in this role? In order to write this assignment you need to exercise your historical imagination and engage with a primary source in a critical fashion. You must think about Staden’s biases and how he viewed the world he was experiencing. The purpose of this assignment is to recognize that ethnographers are go-betweens and hence intermediaries in our understanding of indigenous people. Make sure to review the “Guide to Writing an Essay” and “Sample Paper” posted on Sakai before writing your paper.

4. RESEARCH PROPOSAL AND PAPER

i. Description and Purpose

The third assignment of this course is a research paper on a topic of your choosing related to one or more of the major weekly seminar themes. The purpose of this assignment is to provide you with an opportunity to exercise your research and analytical skills. You need to be able to find relevant material on a topic in the library, organize your findings, and then construct an argument about what you discovered. Your essay should be based upon at least 2 primary sources and at least 7 secondary sources (both journal articles and books). Beyond e-Books and e-Journals available through the James A. Gibson Library, online sources are strictly prohibited. Using primary and secondary sources from the syllabus is permissible, but you should limit yourself to only a few. As you carry out your research you must look for work by reputable scholars, which means performing word searches in the library catalogue and other databases of scholarly journals. All students must email the instructor a short proposal and an annotated bibliography on or before March 4. Make sure to review the “Guide to Writing an Essay” and “Sample Paper” posted on Sakai before beginning your research and writing.

ii. Important Details

Due Date (Proposal): March 4 (email)

Length (Proposal): 2 pages (double-spaced, 12-font, Times New Roman)

Due Date and Place (Paper): April 8 (History Department Drop Box)

Length (Paper): 12 pages (double-spaced, 12-font, Times New Roman)

Sources:

- At least 2 primary sources
- At least 7 secondary sources (both journal articles and books)

5. EVALUATION SCHEME

You need to hand in all assignments to receive a passing grade in this course.

COMPONENTS OF THE COURSE	PERCENTAGE OF THE FINAL GRADE	DUE DATE
Seminar Participation	25%	N/A
Seminar Presentation	5%
“Ethnographic” Report #1	10%	January 14
“Ethnographic” Report #2	15%	February 11
Research Proposal/Annotated Bibliography	5%	March 4
Research Paper	40%	April 8

V. COURSE BOOKS

The following course textbooks are available in the campus bookstore:

- Felipe Guaman Poma de Ayala. The First New Chronicle and Good Government. Translated by David Frye (Indianapolis: Hackett Publishing Company, 2006).
- Eve M. Duffy and Alida C. Metcalf. The Return of Hans Staden: A Go-between in the Atlantic World (Baltimore: The Johns Hopkins University Press, 2012).
- The Renaissance Ethnography MARS 3V96 course package (all of the material for the course is available in this package with the exception of online sources).

ADMINISTRATIVE/ACADEMIC MATTERS

I. EMAIL POLICY

Emails will be checked weekly between Monday and Friday. Every message sent should indicate in the subject line “MARS 3V96” or it may be placed into junk mail. You may feel free to email the instructor about any questions you have concerning the course.

II. SAKAI

The syllabus, important handouts, evaluation schemes, and internet links will all be available for consultation on Sakai.

III. PLAGIARISM

Plagiarism—taking credit for someone else’s work, be it an idea, a citation, or an essay found on the internet—is a serious offence and will be treated accordingly. For further details on plagiarism and academic dishonesty more generally you should consult the 2012–2013 Brock University Undergraduate Calendar under “Academic Regulations and University Policies>Academic Misconduct” at <http://www.brocku.ca/webcal/2012/> undergrad/areg.html. You can also visit the James A. Gibson Library website under “Help>Writing and Citing>Plagiarism” at <http://www.brocku.ca/library/help-lib/writing-citing/plagiarism>.

IV. SUBMISSION AND LATE POLICY

Under no circumstances will an assignment be handed in electronically (with the exception of the essay proposal). Assignments that are handed in late without the instructor’s permission will be penalized 10% of the assignment’s worth per day after the due date (weekends count as two days) and will not receive written comments. All extensions must be approved by the instructor beforehand and only valid excuses will result in permission to hand in an assignment late. For more information you can visit Brock’s Student Health Services website under “Policies>Medical Exemption Policy” at <http://www.brocku.ca/health-services/policies/exemption>.

V. GRADING

To earn a passing grade in this course you must hand in all of the given assignments. All submitted papers that do not have a bibliography and/or are less than the required length (even a paragraph under) will be returned to you as incomplete and given a zero. For more information on both how to write an essay and how they are evaluated see the “Guide to Writing an Essay,” “Sample Paper,” and “Guide to the Evaluation of Essays” posted on Sakai. Here are some of the general characteristics your papers should have:

- A title page with the title of your paper, your name, course code, instructor, and the date
- An introduction clearly stating the theme of your paper and its general argument
- A proper use of sentences, paragraphs, punctuation, spelling, and grammar
- A manageable topic and organized structure
- A persuasive thesis that is well argued
- An intelligent use of sources and signs of original research
- A quality of analysis and a general demonstration of effort
- An informative conclusion concisely summing up your paper
- A bibliography and footnotes according to the Chicago Manual of Style
- A format using 12-font and Times New Roman letters on double-spaced pages
- A page number at the top or bottom of every page (excluding the title page)

VI. SEMINAR CONDUCT

You are expected to treat the instructor and your fellow students with respect. This means arriving to class on time, keeping noise levels to a minimum, turning off cell phones, and using personal computers for note-taking only. Personal computers will not be used for surfing the web, Facebook, games, checking email, or for watching videos.

VII. COURSE WITHDRAWAL

If you wish to withdraw from this course without academic penalty you must do so before March 8.

VIII. SERVICES FOR STUDENTS WITH DISABILITIES

As part of Brock University's commitment to a respectful work and learning environment, the University will make every reasonable effort to accommodate all members of the university community with disabilities. If you require academic accommodations related to a documented disability to participate in this course, you are encouraged to contact Services for Students with Disabilities in the Student Development Centre (4th floor Schmon Tower, ex. 3240). You are also encouraged to discuss any accommodations with the instructor well in advance of due dates and scheduled assessments.
