We invite you to explore Central Florida's past by searching and browsing over 80,000 images of historic materials. Diaries and letters describe the region and how people survived day-by-day in this extreme and rugged environment. Maps, photographs, and postcards illustrate how the region looked in the early years and how it changed over time.

PRISM, Political & Rights Issues & Social Movements, a collaborative digitization project of the libraries and special collections departments of Florida Atlantic University (FAU), and the University of Central Florida (UCF), is composed of materials focusing on a wide range of political and rights issues and social movements including topics such as socialism and communism, class struggle, Marxist economics, religion, world pacifism, anti-racism, anti-Semitism, civil rights, women's rights, workers' rights, world labor movements, world economics, capitalism, the demise of colonialism, Cuban politics, the "ban-the-bomb" movement, war efforts, the Vietnam War, and the United Nations. Spanning from the mid 19th century to the late 20th century, the pamphlets and monographs provide insight into the prevailing leftist and liberal views of the times from countries all around the world, from the United States to Korea and India to Canada.

We invite you to explore the various writings to gain an understanding of historical economic, political, and social forces that have had an influence on today's societies.
Copyright Information

Terms of Use
The PRISM Political & Rights Issues & Social Movements Collection represents a sampling of many treasures available from participating libraries. Users should note the names of individual institutions, i.e., FAU and UCF, holding original copies, and contact them directly for information on reproductions, copyright, research assistance, reading room hours, and additional materials.

The PALMM PRISM: Political & Rights Issues & Social Movements is a collection of digital images made from source materials provided by the Special Collections departments at Florida Atlantic University Library and the Special Collections and University Archives Department at University of Central Florida Libraries. Prior to digitization, each item was researched to determine copyright and public domain status. All items published prior to 1923 were deemed to be in the public domain. Items published after 1922 were examined for publication notice, copyright registration, copyright renewal, and additional conditions as outlined in Peter Hirle's Copyright Term and the Public Domain in the United States. To determine whether a copyright was renewed, both the Stanford Copyright Renewal Database and Rutgers U.S. copyright renewal records were consulted to determine the status of each item.

Fair Use
Unless additional restrictions are noted, copyrighted electronic materials in this collection may be used for research, instruction, and private study under the provisions of Fair Use. Fair Use is a provision of United States Copyright Law (United States Code, Title 17, section 107) which allows limited use of copyrighted materials under certain conditions. Factors to be considered whether a particular use falls under Fair Use include:

- The purpose or character of the use;
- The nature of the copyrighted work;
- The amount and substantiality of the work being used;
- The effect of the use on the market for and value of the original.

Under Fair Use you may view, print, photocopy, and download images from this site without prior permission, provided that you provide proper attribution of the source on all copies.

For any other use of these electronic materials, including but not limited to display, publication and commercial use, permission of the copyright holder must be obtained.

There are several good sources of information about copyright and Fair Use on the web. For additional information, you may want to start with the Smathers Library Copyright Reference Page at http://digital.uflib.ufl.edu/procedures/copyright/, or the Copyright Management Center, Indiana University at http://copyright.ui.edu/.

Attribution of Source
Citations, quotations, and use of images in this collection made under Fair Use or with permission of the copyright holder must acknowledge their source. Proper attribution includes the name of the resource, the name of the collection such as PRISM, the name of the copyright holder, and the URL of the PRISM homepage at http://palmm.fcla.edu/prism.

Permission For Source
User assumes all liability for copyright infringement and are advised to follow applicable copyright laws for permission and use of the electronic versions. Permission must be obtained for display, publication, commercial use, or any other use of the digital materials in this collection except as allowed under Fair Use.

TERMS OF USE

The PALMM version of the Florida Historical Quarterly is a collection of digital images made from source materials provided by the Florida Historical Society and the University of Central Florida Libraries. Prior to digitizing the Florida Historical Quarterly, the Florida Historical Society and the University of Central Florida Libraries entered into an agreement to electronically publish the Florida Historical Quarterly. The letter of agreement, which is on file at the University of Central Florida Libraries, states that "the Florida Historical Society grants permission to the University of Central Florida Libraries to produce a digital copy of the Florida Historical Quarterly which will be used for the Florida Heritage Project".

FAIR USE

Unless additional restrictions are noted, copyrighted electronic materials in this collection may be used for research, instruction, and private study under the provisions of Fair Use. Fair Use is a provision of United States Copyright Law (United States Code, Title 17, section 107) which allows limited use of copyrighted materials under certain conditions. Factors to be considered whether a particular use falls under Fair Use include:

- The purpose or character of the use;

Carey Hand

The University of Central Florida Special Collections holds the Funeral Home Records from 1891-1955. The records are used extensively for genealogical and historical research on Central Florida. The collection includes Undertaker's Memoranda, Funeral Registers, Cremation Records, records for the Palm and Greenwood Cemeteries, as well as other materials relating to the operations of the Orlando mortuary business. For more information, visit the Carey Hand exhibit or the Carey Hand finding aid.

Forty four books of the Undertaker's Memoranda covering the time period from June 15, 1891 through November 10, 1927 can be searched and accessed on Central Florida Memory. You can search this collection by name, date of death, cause of death, parents' names, burial place, and residence.

Tips for searching

The search boxes below search across all records in Central Florida Memory for all of the terms that you put in the search box, in any order. For example, if you search for "gunshot wound", the search engine searches for items containing "gunshot", and "wound", but will not return results containing only the single words "gunshot" or "wound". Most of the fields below are specific to the Carey Hand records and will return results focused on those records. Some of the fields, like the Name field, will retrieve results from all of the materials in Central Florida Memory. Simply scroll through the pages by clicking on the page numbers or next at the top or the bottom of the screen to locate the appropriate Carey Hand records.

The search boxes support the use of a wildcard operator that enables you to search for approximate terms. Using an asterisk () at the end of a search term will search for results with none, or any number of any characters appended to the root search term. For example, dan will find results with the words “dan,” “danny,” “daniel,” “daniels” and so on.
