March 5, 2014

Instructional Facility Design for Transformative Learning

Paul V Stenis, Pepperdine University
Marc Vinyard, Pepperdine University
Mary Ann Naumann, Pepperdine University

Available at: https://works.bepress.com/marcvinyard/1/
Instructional Facility Design for Transformative Learning
Former Lab
Issues with our former Library Instruction Lab

- Obstacles to good eye contact
- Furniture configuration hinders active learning
- Students head to the back of the room
Active Learning is Crucial

Active Learning

Lecturing
ACRL Supports Active Learning

- The Association of College & Research Libraries (ACRL) recommends active learning for library instruction
- “The physical setting should be flexible enough to accommodate active learning and student collaboration when appropriate”

Source:

Many instructional labs have designs that favor lecturing
Some library labs support active learning

Loyola Marymount
Occidental
Harvard (Lamont Library)
Librarians >> Campus Construction >> Outside Vendors >> IT

Pepperdine Librarians, Early January 2013

Pepperdine Campus Construction, Late January 2013

Outside Contractors, Vendors, IT January 2014
Involve IT Much Much Much Much Much Much Earlier Invitation

Marc Vinyard
marc.vinyard@pepperdine.edu

Paul Stenis
paul.stenis@pepperdine.edu

Mary Ann Naumann  maryann.
naumann@pepperdine.edu