LibGuides: A Resource for Every Teaching Situation and Learning Style

Marisa Walstrum

Available at: https://works.bepress.com/marisa_walstrum/2/
LibGuides out of the box:

Showcase new resources in the library and provide additional information and access to special collections.
The LibGuide can be placed as a link on the library website, or in an email to faculty, or others interested in the collection. LibGuides offers features such as RSS and email notifications to keep up with what is being published on the guides.

Use LibGuides “out of the box” to:

- Create an attractive way to showcase new books/resources in the library
- Post documents, links, and related information about a resource or service
- Make another point of access to your library’s webpage for a special resource or service

LibGuides made to order:

Use a template or start from scratch to design your LibGuide. NLU has a MASTERGUIDE, with frequently used information such as handouts, tutorials, general library information, frequently used links, databases, and FAQs. We link to boxes that have frequently used content to make creating and updating the LibGuides simple.

Librarians use the LibGuides to post information about our Digital Information Literacy Credit Courses, Continuing Education Workshops, and Events through the University Library. We have been invited to create guides for other University entities, such as our Center for Positive Aging.

Selected New Books in The American Collection

Colorful covers and bibliographic information appear with a link to the book in the OPAC.

Additional Popular Guides at NLU include:

- Program specific (MBA): http://libguides.nl.edu/MBA
- Refworks: http://libguides.nl.edu/refworks
- Selected Websites for one of our colleges: http://libguides.nl.edu/NCEwebsites
- Avoiding Plagiarism: http://libguides.nl.edu/plagiarism
- The NLU Institutional Repository: http://libguides.nl.edu/oasisinstitutionalrepositories
- The Center for Positive Aging (at NLU): http://libguides.nl.edu/center4positiveaging

Welcome to LibGuides: A Resource for Every Teaching Situation & Learning Style.
The National-Louis University Library uses LibGuides as an online resource guide and a tool to deliver instruction online and in person. This poster highlights some successful guides that go beyond the traditional subject guide. By incorporating Web 2.0 technologies, by addressing different learning styles, and by providing access to resources found within and beyond the library, the guides below represent a unique way to promote library resources and services and to support our library’s instruction program.

Poster Presentation by:
Marisa Spooner, National-Louis University
312.261.3439
marisa.spooner@nl.edu