In Pseudonym, Illinois

Meg Johnson, University of Akron
IN PSEUDONYM, ILLINOIS

By Meg Johnson

I have as many sundresses as there are days of the summer.

It doesn’t matter what I wear or don’t wear. It doesn’t matter that I have a face.

He’s always horny after his men’s yoga class.

Published in Anthem Journal (Summer 2014): http://anthemjournal.tumblr.com/post/94850299126/in-pseudonym-illinois

Meg Johnson is the author of the full length poetry collection Inappropriate Sleepover (The National Poetry Review Press, 2014) which was recently a NewPages Editor’s Pick. Her poems have appeared in Hobart, Nashville Review, The Puritan, Sugar House Review, Verse Daily, and others. Meg started dancing at a young age and worked professionally in the performing arts for many years. She is the editor of Dressing Room Poetry Journal and recently received her MFA in creative writing from the NEOMFA Program. She is currently working on a manuscript titled Butter Sad which has been a finalist in book contests. Her website is: megjohnson.org and she blogs at: megjohnsonmegjohnson.blogspot.com