LIBRARY EXPERIENCE

James Madison University
Psychology Liaison Librarian
Assistant Professor   2011-present

- Support research and information literacy by serving as a liaison to graduate and undergraduate psychology faculty, students, and academic departments.
- Provide a broad range of liaison services including developing collaborative relationships with departments, providing information literacy and library instruction, and developing and managing a very large, diverse psychology collection.
- Provide reference and information services that promote student success and discovery and support faculty research, including general and specialized reference services, consultation, and innovative information delivery services.
- Contribute to presentation of research and information in national, regional, or state journals, presentation of papers at national, regional, or state conferences, professional contributions to formally organized panels, forums, debates, staff seminars, successful grant application, or in-house research that influences services and activities of the libraries.
- Contribute professionally to activities, committees, and initiatives that improve and advance the mission and goals of libraries, the University, the profession, and the community.

Seattle Public Library
Student Librarian – Business, Science and Technology   2009-2010

- Provided quality reference and non-reference assistance at a busy reference desk (Business, Science and Technology – Dewey #'s 000-699) through interactions conducted in person, via telephone, via e-mail and using our ask-a-librarian online resource.
- Assisted with library outreach efforts including helping with programs and blogging for the Seattle Public Library's "Shelftalk" blog.
- Provided computer and building navigation assistance to help patrons use our complex facilities.
- Participated in collection development projects including the weeding of the psychology subject collection.

University of Washington   2009
Student Assistant – Special Collections

- Answered non-reference questions concerning the UW Libraries Special Collections department and its history, features and use, in the process becoming familiar with academic and special library standards and practices.

- Assisted with day-to-day operations, including photocopying and scanning fragile materials and retrieving and re-shelving manuscripts, folios and other archived materials.

RELATED EXPERIENCE

Project MARS/Project AIMS/Project MAST   2006-2008 and 2009-2010
University of Washington
Research Scientist/Research Assistant

- Controlled and updated all data collected through, and relevant to, this psychology experiment, utilizing an array of data management software programs, including Microsoft Office and SPSS.
- Supervised and trained all research assistants and volunteers in the research project's many duties.
- Was responsible for running human subjects through all aspects of the experimental process.
- Routinely handled highly sensitive and personal data in a discrete and appropriate manner consistent with University of Washington and Human Subjects Division policies.
