The Scuola Europea di Relazioni Industriali – SERI (European School of Industrial Relations) is pleased to announce a call for papers for the monographic part of one of the 2015 issues of “Economia&Lavoro”, Fondazione Giacomo Brodolini’s four-monthly journal published by Carocci.

SERI monitors current developments in the TTIP – the Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership. SERI is investigating the TTIP labour aspects concerning law, economics and policy (job creation/disruption, industrialisation and urban recasting, industrial relations, workers’ mobility, social rights, regulations). By means of “Economia&Lavoro”, SERI will focus its attention on the central issues in the current discussions related to labour in international investment and trade law, economics, and transatlantic dialogue policy.

The chapters may be detailed analyses or short think pieces. All papers must be original texts and are subject to double-blind peer review. The Editors-in-Chief are Michele Faioli (Law School, Tor Vergata University of Rome), Chair of SERI, and Annamaria Simonazzi (Department of Economics, Sapienza University of Rome), Director of “Economia&Lavoro”.

Submission guidelines

Original contributions to be considered for publication in “Economia&Lavoro” should meet the requirements set out in the Editorial Office’s guidelines. References, bibliography and text format should conform to the Publishing House’s guidelines. Each contribution should contain an abstract (max 10 lines), and a table of contents is recommended.

For inclusion in one of the 2015 issues of “Economia&lavoro”, contributions (in Word format) should be submitted by 30 November 2014 to the following email address: economialavoro@fondazionebrodolini.it.
