Introduction

JOHN ELLIS LAVERS 1936 — 1993

John was born on 22 July 1936, the only child of George and Irene Lavers. He was educated at St Roan’s School, Greenwich, London and did his National Service with the British army Royal Medical Corps, seeing ‘action’ (at least in the technical sense) during the Suez Crisis in Port Said. Following his military service he enrolled at University College, London where he graduated with a B.Sc. in Anthropology, 1962. He followed this with an M.Sc. in Anthropology, also at the University of London in 1964, the title of his dissertation being ‘The Organisation and Distribution of Trade in the Central Sudan in the Pre-Colonial Period’.

Shortly after this he went out to Nigeria and it was there that I first met him and began a friendship that lasted until his death. He came out to Nigeria to work on the history of Bornu for his doctorate. It was one of the regrets of his friends (but not necessarily himself) that he never wrote the thesis, but kept it all stored in his encyclopaedic mind. With the doctoral project effectively abandoned, he settled down in Nigeria marrying and making his home in Kano for almost thirty years. With or without a Ph.D., however, there was no doubt of the quality of John’s mind and the enviable breadth of his knowledge of Bornu and Hausa history. He was appointed Assistant Lecturer in History at Abdullahi Bayero College 1966, became Reader in History at what had long since become Bayero University in 1982, and Professor of History at the same institution in 1987. He died on 16th May 1993
