Understanding 5 Different Types Of Essays

Natalie Strong, University of California, San Francisco
Understanding 5 Different Types of Essays

Essay writing is one of the most important requirements of academics, at the high school and college level. It is a source for the instructors to know about the learning, knowledge, and understanding of the students. They also try to assess the argumentation and persuasion skills of the students. Most of the times, students get confused due to a number of different types of essay and wonder about the purpose of essay writing. The most important purpose of essay writing is that it enables the students to think about some issue from different perspectives. It also improves the writing skills of the students, which helps them throughout their life. If you also get confused about the type of essays, there is no need to get worried anymore, as you can learn about the different types of essays here and utilize it for your essay assignments.

1. Argumentative Essay

One of the most important, as well as the common type of essays is the argumentative essay. In such type of essays, the students have to present the arguments about the two sides of an issue, without being biased or supporting any side. Students commit the mistake of just stressing about the view which they think is correct, while totally ignoring the other side. Such an attitude will only lower your grades, so be careful about giving equal importance to the two sides and present the arguments in a logical manner. Moreover, back them up with evidence.

2. Persuasive Essay
Another very common type of essays is the persuasive essay. Most of the students confuse the persuasive essay with the argumentative essay. They think that presenting the arguments is the same as persuading the readers. However, it is not. In the persuasive essays, the students have to pick a side of an issue, which they think is rights and present their support regarding it. They need to convince the audience about why the side is better and should be supported. Persuasion cannot be done by just presenting the claims, so the students need to provide the evidence and support of their claims, in order to get the attention of the readers.

3. Descriptive Essay

Descriptive essay is another important type of essays. Most of the times, the high school students get the assignment of descriptive essay writing. In this type of essay, the students have to provide a detailed description of some person, place or event, which they experienced. They have to take care of describing their feelings and emotions in that particular moment, in order to provide a clear picture to the readers.

An important type of essays is compare and contrast essay. In the case of compare and contrast essay, In these essays you have to ensure that similarities and differences between two topics which are under discussion must be written in details. Do not focus on just one extreme and maintain a balanced approach while comparing and contrasting. If you are a student and you do not take care in your essay writing, your grades might be affected.

4. Narrative Essay

Another important and common type of essay is the narrative essay. Most of the students confuse descriptive essays with a narrative essay. However, the two are different from each other. The greatest difference between the two is that the narrative essay is written in the first person context and the person has to write about his views and thinking in a particular scenario. While in the case of a descriptive essay, the author has to provide a detailed description of the incident. Another important point that the students need to focus on is that they have to provide the details about action in the narrative essays.

5. Compare and Contrast Essay

Another important type of essays is, compare and contrast essay. In the case of compare and contrast essay, it is very important to discuss the similarities and difference of the two things under discussion. The students make the mistake of only discussing the similarities or differences. However, it is not right and can affect the grades of the students. So be careful about discussing both, similarities and differences, in compare and contrast essay.