Prioritizing Library Instruction: Challenges and Opportunities Moving into the Digital Age

Rob Morrison
Deana Greenfield
Marisa Walstrom
Amy LeFager
Prioritizing Library Instruction: Challenges and Opportunities Moving into the Digital Age

Deana Greenfield, Amy LeFager, Rob Morrison, & Marisa Walstrum

IACRL 2012: Adopt, Adapt, Accelerate
Why do we need to prioritize instruction?

- Technology
- Role of librarian as teacher
- Changes in higher education
- Opportunities to address issues in a way that re-shapes our future
- The NLU experience
  - demand for credit courses
  - culture shift - expanded teaching role
The shift to Online

- Role of self guided tutorials
  - Meets growing demand for instruction & frees up time for teaching higher order skills
Self guided tutorials: Challenges

- Marketing/awareness
- Learning Styles
  - Face-to-face & Online
- Technical Support
- Synchronous & Asynchronous
- Other challenges?
Self-guided tutorials: Solutions

- Collaborate with faculty
- Visual, Audio, Text
  - Jing!, LibGuides, Interactive tutorials
- Dedicated or shared staffing model that fits your library
- Blended teaching
Beyond Traditional Instruction Role

Integrated Teaching Role
- Embedded teaching
- Credit courses
- Course design expertise
- Mentoring teaching faculty
Beyond traditional instructional role: Challenges

- Workload issues - service & teaching
- Perception of librarian as teacher
- Librarian buy-in for new roles
- Other challenges?
Beyond traditional instruction role: Solutions

- Adjuncts
- Flexibility
- Blended instruction
- Participation in institutional governance & community
- Mentoring librarians
Contact for National Louis Librarians:

Deana.Greenfield@nl.edu
Amy.LeFager@nl.edu
Rob.Morrison@nl.edu
Marisa.Walstrum@nl.edu