"A Relaxing Day" is a short, fifteen minute dramatic film I produced about a young couple presumably discussing minor details of their life together, while subliminally discussing a difficult decision. This film was shot over just two days by a crew of Seton Hall University alumni and current students, in Robert Moses State Park, Long Island, NY in October 2004. The film was directed by a fellow NYU graduate and my long-time producing partner, William Pace. Bill also wrote the script - an adaptation of the one act play "The Actress" by Pulitzer nominated playwright Theresa Rebeck. This project has played in five American film festivals to date and won one award.
