

University of Arkansas, Fayetteville

From the Selected Works of Timothy R Tarvin

March, 2014

The Privilege Against Self-Incrimination in Bankruptcy and the Plight of the Debtor

Timothy R Tarvin, University of Arkansas

Available at: https://works.bepress.com/timothy_tarvin/5/

THE PRIVILEGE AGAINST SELF-INCRIMINATION IN BANKRUPTCY AND THE PLIGHT OF THE DEBTOR

Timothy R. Tarvin

Abstract

The protection of the innocent is inextricably linked to the privilege against self-incrimination. False confessions and incriminating statements lead to wrongful conviction in approximately 27 percent of cases in which true innocents are exonerated. The value of the privilege may be seen in the fact that nearly 10 percent of exonerees pled guilty to crimes that they did not commit.

An innocent debtor in bankruptcy who is either ignorant of her constitutional right to the privilege against self-incrimination in bankruptcy, or who is ineffectual in asserting it, may find herself wrongfully convicted due to unwitting complicity in the delivery of testimony or documents. This lack of understanding poses a serious risk to debtors, and particularly affects the increasing number of pro se debtors.

Without any requirement of notice of the privilege against self-incrimination, there is no application of the exclusionary rule in bankruptcy proceedings. Thus, the privilege must be invoked through an unambiguous assertion in bankruptcy or it may be irretrievably lost. For this reason, the Court, under its rulemaking authority, should adopt a revised Official Form B201A providing pre-filing notice of the privilege in consumer bankruptcy cases to prevent its waiver through ignorance, inadvertence, or lack of competent counsel.

This article has four parts. Part I analyzes the scope and application of the privilege and distinguishes the privilege in bankruptcy from its counterpart in the custodial setting. Part II examines the increased risk to the pro se debtor and the value of the privilege both to the truly innocent who are seemingly guilty and to the presumptively innocent regardless of guilt. Part III explores the plight of the debtor under current law and explains the risk of nondisclosure of the privilege. Finally, Part IV proposes a change in the language of Official Form B201A to alleviate the problems caused by nondisclosure. In short, the author's thesis is that only through the pre-filing delivery of notice will the debtor's right to the privilege be meaningful.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION.....	4
I.THE PRIVILEGE AGAINST SELF-INCRIMINATION IN BANKRUPTCY	10
A. The Privilege in American Jurisprudence.....	10
B. The Privilege in the Modern Era.....	12
C. The Privilege in Varying Contexts	12
D. The Privilege in Bankruptcy Proceedings.....	14
E. Types of Immunity	15
1. Transactional Immunity	15
2. Use Immunity.....	16
3. Derivative Use Immunity.....	16
F. Two Privileges from One Right.....	17
II.THE IMPORTANCE OF THE PRIVILEGE	18
A. The Rise of the Pro Se Debtor in Bankruptcy	18
B. Protecting the Innocent.....	19
C. The Negative Proof Burden.....	22
D. The Presumptively Innocent.....	23
E. The Wrongfully Convicted.....	24
III.THE PLIGHT OF THE DEBTOR IN RETAINING THE PRIVILEGE	24
A. Invocation of the Privilege	25
1. Blanket Invocation is not a “proper assertion”	26
2. The Timing and Consequence of Asserting of the privilege	27
3. Invocation in the Petition and Schedules	28
4. Production of Documents.....	28
5. Assertion of the privilege in Oral Testimony.....	30
B. Adverse Consequences	31
1. Adverse Inferences	31
2. Denial of Discharge	32
3. Inability to Testify in Other Proceedings	32
4. Contempt of Court and imprisonment	33
5. Dismissal of the Bankruptcy.....	33
6. Implications in Criminal Proceedings.....	34
C. Waiver of the Privilege.....	34
1. Depositions and 2004 examinations.....	36
2. Schedules.....	37
3. The 341 Meeting.....	38
D. The Dangers of Parallel Proceedings	38
1. Protective Orders and Grand Jury Subpoenas.....	40
2. Differences in Civil and Criminal Discovery	41
3. Discovery in Bankruptcy and the Risk of Loss of the Privilege.....	42
4. The Debtor’s Failure to Appear, Incarceration, and the Need for Notice of the Privilege	43
E. The Compulsion of Testimony	45
1. Procedure for the Grant of Immunity.....	47
2. Practical considerations.....	49

IV.THE FORM OF REFORM TO PROTECT THE PRIVILEGE 49

A. Revision of Official Form B201A Notice to Individual Debtors 49

 1. The Status Quo 50

 2. A Modest Proposal for Change 51

B. The Rulemaking Process 54

CONCLUSION 55

INTRODUCTION

Imagine a truly innocent, yet seemingly guilty debtor, whose unwitting complicity in the delivery of testimony or documents in her bankruptcy case may lead to her wrongful conviction and imprisonment in a separate criminal matter due to her ignorance of the existence of her constitutional right to the privilege and her inability to assert it effectively. She is among the increasing number of pro se debtors in bankruptcy.¹ She does not know she is putting herself at risk to be arrested and convicted because she, like most debtors in bankruptcy, is unaware of much of the criminal law, though from a legal standpoint she is deemed to know it.² Before examining more closely the concepts of invocation, waiver and the consequences associated with each, consider the hypothetical plight of Sophie Debtor, truly innocent pro se debtor whose testimony would be incriminating.

Sophie Debtor lives in Hard Luck Town.³ She is a working mom who is separated from her husband, Hank. She lost her job and filed chapter 7 pro se using forms on the court's website. She will appear before a trustee at a 341 meeting in 30 days to be examined under oath about her finances including transfers to others⁴ and cash advances.⁵ She may be asked to turn over documents.⁶ Sophie is legally entitled to claim her 5th Amendment privilege against self-incrimination.⁷ However, its existence was not disclosed in the ¹ Joseph Callanan, Pro Se Bankruptcy Filings Growing Faster than Other Debtor Relief, Litigation News, December 29, 2011, available at http://apps.americanbar.org/litigation/litigationnews/top_stories/010312-pro-se-bankruptcy-growing.html (last visited May 1/30/13). See infra Part II A and infra note 79 for the amounts by which pro se filings increased. While other parties in bankruptcy such as creditors, trustees and witnesses also enjoy the privilege, the scope of this article is limited to the individual chapter 7 debtor. Chapter 7 bankruptcies account for a majority of all bankruptcies, with over a million cases filed in the calendar year ending September 30, 2011. http://www.uscourts.gov/uscourts/Statistics/BankruptcyStatistics/BankruptcyFilings/2011/0911_f2.pdf (last visited 1/30/13).

² Shevlin-Carpenter Co. v. State of Minn., 218 U.S. 57, 68 (1910).

³ Song title used by the Blue-Eyed Devils, JJ Muggler and the Killer Dwarfs.

⁴ 11 U.S.C. §548(a)(1)(B)(i) (avoidable transfer if within 2 years of filing the debtor received less than reasonably equivalent value and was insolvent at time).

⁵ 11 U.S.C. §543(a)(2)(C)(i)(I) (fraud is presumed for luxury goods greater than $600 in 90 days); (C)(i)(II) (advances greater than $875 in 70 days); Grogan v. Garner, 498 U.S. 279 (1991) (burden in 523(a) cases is preponderance).

⁶ 11 U.S.C. §542(e); But see, In re Fuller, 262 U.S. 91 (1923) (stating that when a debtor loses control of the documents, the privilege against self-incrimination does not apply).

⁷ 11 U.S.C. §542(e) (Subject to any applicable privilege, debtor must turn over financial documents); McCarthy v. Arndstein, 266 U.S. 34 (1922) (privilege applies forms she prepared, and she will not be told about it. She imagines she must do whatever the trustee says to get a discharge including appearing and testifying at the meeting of creditors.

The background that gives rise to the incriminating facts are that Sophie's husband is authorized on Sophie's credit card. While Hank was having an affair with Corrie Delecti, he gave money to Corrie from cash advances on Sophie's credit card. Hank also bought Corrie jewelry using Sophie's credit card. The transactions occurred before Sophie filed bankruptcy and without her knowledge or consent. The bill arrives after Sophie files bankruptcy so the transactions are not listed in the filing. When confronted, Hank confesses to the affair and the credit card charges. He tells Sophie the money and jewelry are in Sophie's apartment. Then he leaves.

Corrie Delecti is murdered and Sophie realizes that she was in Corrie's apartment building at the time of Corrie's death. Sophie had dropped by to see a friend who was not at home. Sophie's friend lives across the hall from Corrie's apartment. Corrie was the neighbor who told Sophie that her friend was out. An eyewitness saw Sophie in the hall outside Corrie's apartment near the time of the murder, but neither the police nor Sophie know this. The witness left that night and returned home to a rural area in another state.

The Hard Luck Town CSI forensics team finds no evidence to link anyone specifically to the crime. Sophie has no way to establish her innocence. She has a conviction 6 years ago for assaulting a woman who flirted with Hank in a bar.⁸ She is truly innocent, but she is at risk to be indicted, tried, and wrongfully convicted because of her presence at the scene of the crime with the means, motive and opportunity, and because of her criminal record.⁹ In addition, her discharge may be denied unless she learns of the privilege, asserts it unambiguously, and insists on immunity before testifying at the 341 meeting.¹⁰ equally to criminal and civil/bankruptcy proceedings); (Counselman v. Hitchcock, 142 U.S. 547 (1892) (privilege is not limited to criminal cases)).

⁸ Sophie prior conviction may or may not be admissible. Evidence of a crime, wrong, or other act is not admissible to prove a person's character in order to show that on a particular occasion the person acted in accordance with the character. FED. R. EVID. 404

⁹ For purposes of indictment, prosecutors are not required to present exculpatory evidence to the grand jury and defense counsel may not be allowed to present their own evidence. United States v. Williams, 504 U.S. 36, 52 (1992).

¹⁰ For purposes of this article, "invocation" and "proper assertion" will be used interchangeably. A proper assertion is distinguishable from an assertion in that a proper assertion must be unambiguous. Berghuis v. Thompkins, 130 S.Ct. 2250, 2263-64 (2010). See also 11 U.S.C. §727(a)(12) (global objection to discharge related to §522(q)(1)(A) (Debtor has been convicted of a felony which, under the circumstances, demonstrates that the filing of the case was an abuse of the provisions of this title) and (q)(1)(B)(iv) (Debtor owes a debt arising from any criminal act . . . that caused serious physical injury or death to another individual in the preceding 5

At the time of questioning, she is not a suspect in a capital crime, but she is aware that her own testimony could lead to her arrest and conviction.¹¹ It is ironic that while Sophie will not be told of the privilege, she will be informed of credit counseling requirements, the chapters of bankruptcy available, bankruptcy crimes and penalties, the availability of the papers she files for inspection by the Department of Justice (DOJ), and the risk of dismissal if she fails to file her financial information on time.¹² If Sophie is not cooperative, the trustee will object to discharge and may request immunity to compel her testimony.

In sum, media reports reveal to Sophie that her responses will place her at the scene of the horrific crime with means, motive, opportunity, and no alibi. The circumstantial evidence is strong enough to arrest, indict, and possibly convict her.¹³ Sophie knows that a person unknown to her has murdered her husband's mistress only minutes after Sophie was in the hallway of the victim's apartment building to drop in on a friend who was not at home.

She does not know whether the police forensics team has been able to find any evidence to further the investigation, or whether there are any leads. She has no prior experience or training in investigatory work; however, she is intelligent enough to know that any attempts on her part to solve the case could implicate her further. Sophie is truly innocent but at risk of being indicted, tried, and wrongfully convicted while having her bankruptcy blocked because she is unaware of her Fifth Amendment right to the privilege against self-incrimination and how to properly assert it to protect herself.¹⁴

If she were aware of the privilege, she would invoke the privilege because there is evidence to link her to commission of the crime. If she were represented and shared her fear of incrimination with her attorney, in all likelihood she would be advised to invoke the privilege because her responses will be incriminating. Because she is pro se, she is far more likely to be frightened at the prospect of refusing to respond to questioning without knowledge of the potential consequences, even when she knows her responses will be incriminating.

years.)). See 18 USC §3156(a)(3) (a felony is an offense that carries imprisonment of greater than one year); §522(q)(1)(B)(4) (debts for criminal acts or physical injury causing death within 5 years of filing).

¹¹ Ohio v. Reiner, 532 U.S. 17 (2001) (a person may assert the privilege at trial of the accused despite her claim of innocence when she has “reasonable cause to apprehend danger from her answers”).

¹²11 U.S.C. §362(b) (requiring clerks to furnish all debtors with Official Form B201A (notices to consumer debtors) and §527(a)(1)(requiring debt relief agents to provide Official Form B201A to “assisted persons”). For definition of “assisted persons,” see §101(3) (debtors with greater than $175,750 in non-exempt assets) (selected dollar amounts in the Code will change as of 4/1/2013).

¹³ See supra note 129.

¹⁴ 11 U.S.C. § 522(q)(1); 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(12).

If she were competently represented, her attorney would advise her that her failure to unambiguously invoke her privilege would result in the loss of the privilege. The plight of the debtor is that she has few choices. She must testify under oath and incriminate herself in a way that may lead to her arrest and wrongful conviction, or assert her privilege. Her only other choice would be to perjure herself. If she were represented, her attorney would advise her that, if she testifies, she must speak truthfully even if her testimony is incriminatory, and that perjury is not an option.¹⁵ Thus, she logically would not speak and unknowingly waive her privilege because she would know its importance. Likewise, she would redact incriminating information from any required schedules.¹⁶

In short, while it is clear that the Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination¹⁷ applies to debtors in bankruptcy,¹⁸ the debtor may unwittingly waive her rights and incriminate herself by failing to properly invoke the privilege.¹⁹ For this reason, the pro se debtor and the debtor with representation each need notice of the constitutional protection so that they are aware of the consequences of both invocation and waiver of the privilege. The possibility of a Debtor's failure to properly invoke the privilege is made more probable a disclosure adverse to the client's interest should be no greater than the lawyer reasonably believes necessary to accomplish the purpose. If . . . in . . . a judicial proceeding, the disclosure should be made in a manner that limits access to the information to the tribunal or other persons having a need to know it and appropriate protective orders or other arrangements should be sought by the lawyer to the fullest extent practicable.

¹⁵ MODEL RULES OF PROF'L. CONDUCT R. 1.2(d), 3.3, 4.1, 8.4, but see 1.6 (Discussion Draft 1983). Under the rules,

MODEL RULES OF PROF'L. CONDUCT R. 1.6 Comment, (DISCLOSURE ADVERSE TO CLIENT at para. 14.) 18 U.S.C. § 1622 (1994).

¹⁶ Appendix A shows a mock transcript of the first meeting of creditors and reveals the colloquy between Sophie and the trustee. See infra notes 154 and 218.

¹⁷ 11 U.S.C. § 101-1532 (2006). At the outset the author wishes to clarify the term privilege. The use of the term privilege and all related terms, pertains to the privilege against self-incrimination unless otherwise indicated.

¹⁸ See, e.g., 11 U.S.C. § 542(e) (2006); FED. R. BANKR. P. 9017 (making the Federal Rules of Evidence applicable in bankruptcy including FED. R. CIV. P. 43, 44 and 44.1); FED. R. EVID. 501 (stating that, except as required by the Constitution, federal statute, or rules of the Court, the privilege of a person is governed by the principles of the common law as interpreted by the courts of the United States in the light of reason and experience; however, in civil litigation where State law supplies the rule of decision, the privilege is determined in accordance with State law.).

¹⁹ Rogers v. United States, 340 U.S. 367, 371 (1951) (citing United States v. Murdock, 284 U.S. 141, 148 (1931) (overruled on other grounds in Murphy v. Waterfront Com'n of N.Y. Harbor, 378 U.S. 52 (1983))).

because there is no requirement that debtors be told about the privilege prior to filing or interrogation.²⁰

A debtor may lose the privilege based on a waiver inferred from her course of conduct or prior statements concerning a matter,²¹ whether or not the waiver is knowing and intelligent.²² This may be true even when counsel fails to advise the debtor to refuse to answer,²³ and the debtor is unaware at the time that the statements may be incriminating.²⁴ Once the debtor testifies, she may have waived the privilege for later proceedings as to all matters within the scope of her testimony.²⁵

Without any requirement of notice, there is no application of the exclusionary rule in civil proceedings.²⁶ In short, the privilege must be invoked through its unambiguous assertion in bankruptcy, or it is lost.²⁷ This poses special dangers and challenges for pro se debtors, who comprise an increasing percentage of total consumer filings and who are particularly at risk because of the complexity of the proceedings and the exposure to criminal liability.²⁸ The debtor who is represented is also placed at risk, to the extent she may not be properly advised.²⁹

²⁰ Garner v. United States, 424 U.S. 648, 654 n.9 (1976) (holding that a knowing and intelligent waiver is not required in a noncustodial setting).

²¹ Rivoli Grain Co. v. Litton (In re Litton), 74 B.R. 557, 560 (Bankr. C.D. Ill. 1987).

²² Horowitz v. Sheldon (In re Donald Sheldon & Co.), 193 B.R. 152, 162 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1996) (citing Klein v. Harris, 667 F.2d 274, 287 (2d Cir. 1981)).

²³ In re A&L Oil Co., Inc., 200 B.R. 21, 27 (Bankr. D.N.J. 1996).

²⁴ In re Cotillion Investments, Inc., 343 B.R. 344, 351-52 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 2006).

²⁵ Minnesota v. Murphy, 465 U.S. 420, 428 (1983).

²⁶ Immigration & Naturalization Serv. v. Lopez-Mendoza, 468 U.S. 1032, 1051 (1984).

²⁷ It is important to distinguish in this context between violations of the “privilege” and violations of the “right” against self-incrimination. The evidentiary privilege is violated when having been properly invoked disclosure of incriminating information is compelled in a setting in which no criminal penalties may attach. The constitutional right against self-incrimination is violated when privileged information is unprotected whether through non-disclosure or suppression in a setting that subjects the person to the threat of imprisonment or other criminal penalties. 21A AM. JUR. 2D Criminal Law § 1036 (1965).

²⁸ Filing for Bankruptcy Without an Attorney, U.S. Administrative Office of the Courts, Bankruptcy Resources available at http://www.uscourts.gov/FederalCourts/Bankruptcy/BankruptcyResources/FilingBankruptcy WithoutAttorney.aspx (last visited 1/30/13).

²⁹ See supra note 9. And, see In re Cotillion Investments, Inc., 343 B.R. 344 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 2006).

To secure the just determination of every case³⁰ and protect the debtor's privilege, the Court, under its rulemaking authority,³¹ should adopt a revised Official Form B201A³² for use in consumer bankruptcy cases. The revised form would provide pre-filing notice in writing of the privilege against self-incrimination. To accomplish this, the Judicial Conference of the United States should promulgate the proposed form pursuant to its rulemaking authority.³³ This simple change would serve to make the debtor aware of the privilege prior to filing and the consequences of invocation and waiver, so that the privilege would not be lost through ignorance, inadvertence, or lack of competent counsel. This comports with the federal requirement of disclosure of the privilege in civil actions for the assessment of penalties for possession of small amounts of certain controlled substances.³⁴

Although the existing notices listed in Official Form B201A require statutory authority,³⁵ notice of the constitutional privilege against self-incrimination needs no specific statutory authority, because the Court may act under the inherent power of its rulemaking authority.³⁶ This is consistent with the federal requirement of disclosure of the privilege in civil actions.³⁷

The debtor in bankruptcy should receive written notice of the privilege against self-incrimination and acknowledge reading it prior to filing. This article

³⁰ FED. R. BANKR. P. 1001 (2012).

³¹ 28 U.S.C. § 2075 (2006); U.S. CONST. Art. 3, § 1 (2012).

³² 11 U.S.C. § 342(b) (2006); See Official Form B201A (providing notice of certain statutorily required information); See infra Part IV.A.1.

³³ FED. R. BANKR. P. 9009 (2012).

³⁴ 21 U.S.C. §844a(e) (2006), as implemented through 28 C.F.R. §§ 76.4, 76.6, and 76.9. The logical inference is that if Congress and the President through enabling legislation and administrative policy can provide notice of a constitutional privilege in a civil proceeding, the Court may do no less. For articles on the inherent rulemaking authority of courts see James R. Wolf, Inherent Rulemaking Authority of an Independent Judiciary, 56 U. Miami L. Rev. 507 (2002); A. Leo Levin & Anthony G. Amsterdam, Legislative Control Over Judicial Rule-Making: A Problem in Constitutional Revision, 107 U. Pa. L. Rev. 1 (1958); and Roscoe Pound, Procedure Under Rules of Court in New Jersey, 66 Harv. L. Rev. 28, 34 (1952).

³⁵ 11 U.S.C. §342(b).

³⁶ United States v. Hasting, 461 U.S. 499, 505 (1983) (“[G]uided by considerations of justice,” and in the exercise of supervisory powers, federal courts may, within limits, formulate procedural rules not specifically required by the Constitution or the Congress.); See supra note 20.

³⁷ U.S. v. Stringer, 535 F.3d 929, 934-35 (9th Cir. 2008) (providing that SEC Form 1662 provides notice that such voluntary testimony will be provided to U.S. attorneys on a routine basis and may be used in civil or criminal proceedings.); and IRS Form 8300 (providing that “we may also provide the records to appropriate state, local, and foreign criminal law enforcement and regulatory personnel in the performance of their official duties.”); See supra note 20.

has four parts. Part I analyzes the scope and application of the privilege and distinguishes the privilege in bankruptcy from its counterpart in the custodial setting. Part II examines the increased risk to the pro se debtor and the value of the privilege to the truly innocent who are seemingly guilty, and the presumptively innocent, regardless of guilt. Part III explores the plight of the debtor under current law and explains the risk of nondisclosure of the privilege. Finally, Part IV proposes a change in the language of Official Form B201A to alleviate the problems caused by nondisclosure.³⁸ In short, the author's thesis is that only through the pre-filing delivery of notice will the debtor's right to the privilege be meaningful.

I. THE PRIVILEGE AGAINST SELF-INCRIMINATION IN BANKRUPTCY

A. The Privilege in American Jurisprudence

The historical origin of the privilege is obscure.³⁹ Under English case law, the privilege against self-incrimination was a common-law privilege.⁴⁰ As English case law developed, the privilege applied only when there appeared some possibility of incrimination as a result of being compelled to answer.⁴¹ The privilege did not apply to bankruptcy proceedings.⁴²

The early American framers constitutionalized the privilege in the Fifth Amendment as a part of the Bill of Rights in 1791.⁴³ The Court in Burr recognized the privilege and acknowledged that the protection it afforded permitted a person to refuse to give a response to a question that could lead to incriminating evidence.⁴⁴ The privilege, when properly invoked, protected the

³⁸ Official Form B201A; FED. R. BANKR. P. 9009 (2012); 11 U.S.C. § 342(b).

³⁹ The historical development of the privilege at English common law is outside the scope of this article. Some scholars link the origins of the English common law privilege to the constitutional struggles in the latter half of the seventeenth century that resulted in the abolition of the courts of Star Chamber and High Commission, while others maintain that the true origins of the common law privilege are attributable to the work of defense counsel during the rise of adversary criminal procedure at the end of the eighteenth century. See Joseph H. Langbein, The Historical Origins of the Privilege Against Self-Incrimination at Common Law, 92 Mich. L. Rev. 1047 (1994).

⁴⁰ Re Cossens, 1 Buck. 531 (1820).

⁴¹ Regina v. Boyes, 1 Best & S. 311 (1861, Q.B.) For a discussion of the historical development of the privilege in England, see LAFAVE, ISRAEL, KING AND KERR, Criminal Procedure § 2.10(c) (3d Ed.).

⁴² Re Smith, 2 Deac. & Chit. 230 (1833); Re Cossens, 1 Buck 531.

⁴³ U.S. CONST. amend. V.

⁴⁴ United States v. Burr, 25 F.Cas. 38, 41 (No. 14,692E) (D. Va.) (1807), (J. Marshall held that the reach of the Fifth Amendment was so broad as to make the suspect, the criminal defendant, and the civil litigant from forced compulsion of incriminating evidence.⁴⁵ It also protected persons in criminal and civil proceedings by requiring a grant of immunity as a predicate for the surrender of the privilege.⁴⁶ Although some states had bankruptcy laws, Congress did not exercise its power⁴⁷ to enact a permanent bankruptcy system⁴⁸ until 1898.⁴⁹

The Bankruptcy Act of July 1, 1898, or “the Act”, required the debtor to testify but provided for a limited form of immunity,⁵⁰ preventing the use of incriminating testimony, except in a hearing on objections to discharge.⁵¹ The immunity did not protect documents that may have been produced,⁵² perjury and false oaths,⁵³ or the fruits of the debtor’s testimony.⁵⁴ Because the immunity provided was not coextensive with the privilege granted by Counselman,⁵⁵ the debtor could not be forced to give incriminating testimony.⁵⁶ privilege applicable when there was a mere possibility of a criminal charge being made).

⁴⁵ Counselman v. Hitchcock, 142 U.S. 547, 562-3 (1892) (holding that the privilege protects a person called to testify before a grand jury, even though that person is not the accused, since grand jury is part of a “criminal case”) (overruled in part by Kastigar v. United States, 406 U.S. 441 (1972)). The reasoning, or dicta, in Counselman extended the privilege to other judicial proceedings even if not part of a “criminal case”.

⁴⁶ Id.

⁴⁷ U.S. CONST. art. VI. §2; U.S. CONST. art. I. § 8, cl. 4.

⁴⁸ Earlier Acts lasted only briefly. Bankruptcy Act of 1800, ch. 19, 2 Stat. 19, repealed by Act of Dec. 19, 1803, ch. 6, 2 Stat. 248; Bankruptcy Act of 1841, ch. 9, 5 Stat. 440, repealed by Act of March 3, 1843, ch. 82, 5 Stat. 614; Bankruptcy Act of 1867, ch. 176, 14 Stat. 517, amended by Act of June 22, 1874, ch. 390, 18 Stat. 178, repealed by Act of June 7, 1878, ch. 170, 20 Stat. 99.

⁴⁹ The Bankruptcy Act of July 1, 1898, c. 541, 30 Stat. 544, as amended, sometimes called the Nelson Act, repealed by Pub.L. No. 95-598.

⁵⁰ Id. at §7a(10).

⁵¹ Ensign v. Pennsylvania, 227 U.S. 592 (1913).

⁵² Ex Parte Fuller, 262 U.S. 91, 93 (1923).

⁵³ Edelstein v. United States, 149 F. 636, 646 (8th Cir. 1906), cert. denied, 205 U.S. 543 (1907).

⁵⁴ COLLIER ON BANKRUPTCY, §3-344 (16th ed. 2012).

⁵⁵ Counselman v. Hitchcock, 142 U.S. 547, 585-86 (1892) (reasoning that no statute that leaves the party or witness subject to prosecution after he answers the incriminating question can supplant the privilege and holding that to be valid, a statute must afford absolute immunity against future prosecution for the offense to which the question relates).

⁵⁶ In re Nachman, 114 F. 995, 997 (D.S.C. 1902).

B. The Privilege in the Modern Era

By the early twentieth century, American case law had developed so that the privilege against self-incrimination applied in bankruptcy proceedings.⁵⁷ Eventually, the Act was amended to provide that immunity not only applied to testimony, but to evidence “directly or indirectly derived from such testimony”.⁵⁸ The Court developed a standard requiring that the privilege protect an individual when she reasonably believes a disclosure could be used in a criminal prosecution.⁵⁹ The application and scope of the privilege in the various aspects of the bankruptcy process will be more closely examined in Part III.⁶⁰

The debtor in bankruptcy, like persons in other civil proceedings, does not enjoy the same protections afforded by the privilege to those in criminal proceedings.⁶¹ Nevertheless, if the debtor is interrogated about matters that could prove incriminating, she may invoke the privilege against self-incrimination⁶² and insist on immunity before answering.⁶³

C. The Privilege in Varying Contexts

The differences between the privilege in the custodial or criminal setting versus the bankruptcy setting, create special challenges for debtors as clearly shown when contrasted with the person who is in a custodial, or criminal, setting.⁶⁴ The Court in the custodial setting seeks to ensure that any waiver of the privilege be knowing and intelligent by requiring that Miranda rights be ⁵⁷ Counselman, 142 U.S. 547; Brown v. Walker, 161 U.S. 591 (1896); McCarthy v. Arndstein, 266 U.S. 34, 40 (1924); In re Rosser, 96 F. 305, 308 (E.D. Mo. 1899). CRAIG PEYTON GAUMER and CHARLES L. NAIL, JR., Truth of Consequences: The Dilemma of Asserting the Fifth Amendment Privilege Against Self-Incrimination in Bankruptcy Proceedings, 76 NEB. L. REV. 497, 501 (1997).

⁵⁸ Pub. L. No. 91-452, 91st Cong., 2d Sess. (1970), 18 U.S.C. 6002 (§207 of the Organized Crime Control Act of 1970). See United States v. Goodwin, 470 F.2d 893 (5th Cir. 1972) (pre-amendment case upholding conviction despite Defendant’s argument that §7a(10) prior to the amendment was unconstitutional, and holding that Congress had power to grant restricted immunity to witnesses who fail to invoke the privilege).

⁵⁹ Kastigar v. United States, 406 U.S. 441, 444-45 (1972).

⁶⁰ See infra Part III.

⁶¹ See e.g. Miranda v. Arizona, 384 U.S. 436, 444 (1966) (an individual under custodial interrogation is entitled to warning (notice) of her right to remain silent or end questioning and her right to an attorney); See also LAURENT SACHAROFF, Miranda’s Hidden Right, 63 ALA. L. REV. 535 (2012).

⁶² See supra note 3.

⁶³ 11 U.S.C. § 344 (2006).

⁶⁴ The use of the terms “custodial” and “criminal” will be used interchangeably for purposes of the article.

given.⁶⁵ If the Miranda rights are not given, a presumption of compulsion arises that may lead to the suppression of any evidence obtained under the exclusionary rule.⁶⁶

The Court has held that a person in the criminal context, who is subject to custodial interrogation, must be told of her rights under the Fifth Amendment against self-incrimination before she can waive those rights.⁶⁷ The burden is on the state to establish the voluntariness of the waiver.⁶⁸ Although the debtor is required to appear at various times throughout the bankruptcy process, and is subject to questioning,⁶⁹ she is not entitled to Miranda warnings at any time during the proceedings.⁷⁰ For this reason, the debtor may be unaware when she ⁶⁵ Miranda, 384 U.S. at 444 (1966) (Interrogation is custodial if it occurs while the individual is “in custody at the [police] station or otherwise deprived of his freedoms of action in any significant way.”) (emphasis added). If the interrogation is custodial:

[h]e must be warned prior to any questioning that he has the right to remain silent, that anything he says can be used against him in a court of law, that he has the right to the presence of an attorney, and that if he cannot afford an attorney one will be appointed for him prior to any questioning if he so desires.

Id. at 479.

⁶⁶ Id., at 460-65.

⁶⁷ Id., at 444.

⁶⁸ Id. Waiver of the privilege appears in a variety of contexts requiring the court’s judgment. Compare Estelle v. Smith 451 U.S. 454 (1981) (“A criminal defendant, who neither initiates a psychiatric evaluation nor attempts to introduce any psychiatric evidence, may not be compelled to respond to a psychiatrist if his statements can be used against him at a capital sentencing proceeding.”); with Noggle v. Marshall, 706 F.2d 1048, 1417 (holding that the Fifth Amendment was still relevant as to a psychiatrist called by the defense but it did not warrant habeas relief).

⁶⁹ 11 U.S.C. § 344 (2006) (“ . . . The trustee shall orally examine the debtor. . .”) (emphasis added).

⁷⁰ See United States v. Jackson, 836 F.2d 324, 327 (7th Cir. 1987) (holding that a debtor who was convicted of giving false oaths at bankruptcy proceedings and concealing creditor’s collateral, was not entitled to Miranda warnings during the bankruptcy proceedings). Furthermore, other courts have held that a person is not “in custody” for Miranda purposes merely because of his compelled appearance at a judicial proceeding to give testimony. See e.g. United States v. Melendez, 228 F.3d 19, 22 (1st Cir. 2000) (hearing on motion to dismiss criminal charges of another person); United States v. Byram, 145 F.3d 405, 410 (1st Cir. 1998) (criminal trial of another); United States v. Kilgroe, 959 F.2d 802, 804-05 (9th Cir. 1992) (criminal trial of another); United States v. Vecchiarello, 569 F.2d 656, 664-65 (D.C. Cir. 1977) (depositions); United States v. Haldeman, 559 F.2d 31, 92 (D.C. Cir. 1976) (interrogation by the House Judiciary Committee); United States v. Pommerening, files her bankruptcy petition and schedules, or when she testifies at any point in the bankruptcy proceedings, that she is potentially opening herself up to criminal liability through waiver of the privilege. Therefore, the pro se debtor and the bankruptcy practitioner must become aware of the dangers debtors may face when considering filing bankruptcy.⁷¹

D. The Privilege in Bankruptcy Proceedings

In the early years of the republic, the Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination was held to exist whenever there was the mere possibility of incrimination.⁷² The literal wording of the constitutional provision states: “No person... shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself. . . .”⁷³ Prior to Miranda, there was no obligation to advise a person in either the criminal or civil setting; the privilege, once invoked, was equally protective in both.⁷⁴

However, today the invoked privilege against self-incrimination in bankruptcy is not the equal of its custodial counterpart.⁷⁵

500 F.2d 92, 99-100 (10th Cir. 1974) (grand jury witnesses); State v. Cathey, 741 P.2d 738, 743 (Kan. 1987) (inquisition hearing) (overruled on other grounds in State v. Schoonover, 133 P.3d 48, 78 (Kan. 2006)); State v. Tonzola, 621 A.2d 243, 247 (Vt. 1993) (“inquest” procedure to investigate crime).

⁷¹ One reason bankruptcy practitioners may be unaware of the debtor’s right to invoke the privilege is because many do not practice criminal law. See infra note 225.

⁷² United States v. Burr, 25 F.Cas. 38, 41 (No. 14,692E) (D. Va.) (1807).

⁷³ U.S. CONST. amend. V (emphasis added).

⁷⁴ The pre-Miranda privilege was “equally protective” in the civil and criminal settings in that (1) notice was not required prior to interrogation, (2) transactional immunity was required in either context to compel testimony (Counselman v. Hitchcock, 142 U.S. 547, 586 (1892)), and (3) no adverse inference could be drawn from silence. Counselman would not be overruled until 1972 when Kastigar changed the type of immunity required. Kastigar v. United States, 406 U.S. 441, 452-53 (1972). The privilege would be eroded further in 1976 when Baxter allowed an adverse inference to be drawn from silence in civil cases. Baxter v. Palmigiano, 425 U.S. 308, 318 (1976).

⁷⁵ McCarthy v. Arndstein, 266 U.S. 34, 40 (1924) (holding Constitutional privilege against self-incrimination applicable to civil as well as criminal proceedings); Kastigar, 406 U.S. at 452-53 (holding immunity from use and derivative use is coextensive with the scope of the privilege and is sufficient to compel testimony over claim of privilege; in any subsequent criminal prosecution, the prosecution has the burden of proving affirmatively that evidence proposed to be used is derived from a legitimate source wholly independent of compelled testimony). See supra note 64 and accompanying text.

With the passage of time, the privilege in the criminal setting has evolved into a more robust right, requiring a “knowing and intelligent” waiver.⁷⁶ Miranda strengthened the presumption of compulsion on failure to warn and the application of the exclusionary rule.⁷⁷ In contrast, its civil counterpart has atrophied to the point that a knowing and intelligent waiver is not required. Instead, waiver may be inferred from prior unwarned conduct or testimony.⁷⁸

E. Types of Immunity

Immunity is a term of art in the law, with many nuanced meanings dependent on context.⁷⁹ The forms that are relevant in this context are transactional immunity, use immunity, and derivative use immunity. Immunity acts like a dam, holding back compelled testimonial information from use in a criminal prosecution while allowing the regulated release of that same privileged information in other settings. Historically, immunity is the price the sovereign must pay for the forfeiture of the privilege.

1. Transactional Immunity

As the term implies, transactional immunity is a grant of immunity that shields the witness from any exposure to criminal liability related to a particular transaction.⁸⁰ In other words, the witness, having been given transactional immunity and compelled to testify, cannot thereafter be charged, prosecuted, convicted, or punished for any related matters despite the fact that the witness’s guilt could be established without use of the witness’s testimony or the fruits of that testimony. Thus, the price paid for the forfeiture of the privilege is the sovereign’s guarantee that the witness is protected from exposure to criminal liability regarding the particular transaction. For that reason, the witness’s constitutional right to the privilege is not violated because the immunity removes the potential criminality and renders testimony that would otherwise be incriminating innocuous in a criminal context.⁸¹

⁷⁶ Miranda v. Arizona, 384 U.S. 436, 444 (1966).

⁷⁷ Id. at 462.

⁷⁸ Rivoli Grain Co. v. Litton (In re Litton), 74 B.R. 557, 560 (Bankr. C.D. Ill. 1987); Horowitz v. Sheldon (In re Donald Sheldon & Co.), 193 B.R. 152, 162 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1996) (citing Klein v. Harris, 667 F.2d 274, 287 (2d Cir. 1981)).

⁷⁹ Congressional immunity, sovereign immunity, diplomatic immunity, and judicial immunity are beyond the scope of this article. Though each could touch the realm of bankruptcy practice, none lie at the heart of the author’s thesis.

⁸⁰ Counselman v. Hitchcock, 142 U.S. 547, 586 (1892).

⁸¹ Id.

2. Use Immunity

Use immunity is more limited than transactional immunity in that the witness is protected only from the “use” of the witness’ testimony in any criminal proceeding against the witness. In other words, if the state has sufficient evidence apart from the testimony compelled of the witness following the grant of immunity, the witness may be tried with that evidence. The burden is on the state to establish that the evidence adduced does not use the quarantined testimony.⁸² To the extent that use immunity rather than transactional immunity will suffice as the state’s “payment” to eliminate the debtor’s privilege, the value of the privilege is reduced because of the degree to which protection from criminal prosecution is lost.⁸³

3. Derivative Use Immunity

Closely related to use immunity is derivative use immunity. Derivative use immunity denies the state the use of evidence that is derived from the witness’ testimony. Thus, the “fruits” of the immunized testimony are forbidden fruits that may not be used in a criminal proceeding against the witness.⁸⁴

Over time, the Supreme Court has altered the type of immunity necessary to compel testimony in the face of a proper assertion of the privilege. As examined below in Part III(E), the Court, over the course of history, has moved from a rule mandating transactional immunity in exchange for “immunized testimony” to a rule permitting the compulsion of privileged testimony through a grant of use immunity and derivative use immunity.⁸⁵ The implications of the Court’s ⁸² Murphy v. Waterfront Comm’n of N.Y. Harbor, 378 U.S. 52, 103 (1964).

⁸³ Kastigar v. United States, 406 U.S. 441, 466-67 (1972) (Douglas, J., dissenting) (“When we allow the prosecution to offer only ‘use’ immunity we allow it to grant far less than it has taken away. For while the precise testimony that is compelled may not be used, leads from that testimony may be pursued and used to convict the witness.”).

⁸⁴ Murphy, 378 U.S. 52, 79 (1964).

⁸⁵ While the United States Supreme Court has held that use and derivative use immunity are sufficient, some state courts do more than the Federal Constitution and require transactional immunity. See Pratt v. Kirkpatrick, 718 P.2d 962 (Alaska 1986); Steinberger v. District Court, In and For Tenth Judicial Dist., 596 P.2d 755 (Colo. 1979); State v. Miyasaki, 614 P.2d 915 (Haw. 1980); People ex rel. Cruz v. Fitzgerald, 363 N.E.2d 835 (Ill. 1977); In re Criminal Investigation No. 1-162, 516 A.2d 976 (Md. 1986); Matter of Pressman, 658 N.E.2d 156 (Mass. 1995); People v. McIntire, 599 N.W.2d 102 (Mich. 1999); State v. Charest, 336 N.W.2d 303 (Minn. 1983); Kelly v. Grand Jury of Lewis and Clark County, 552 P.2d 1399 (Mont. 1976); People v. Chin, 490 N.E.2d 505 (1986); State ex rel. Koren v. Grogan, 629 N.E.2d 446 (Ohio 1994); State v. Bertoldi, 495 A.2d 247 (R.I. 1985); State v. Runions, 665 P.2d 1358 (1983); State v. Cottrill, 511 S.E.2d 488 (W. Va. 1998).

decisions affect debtors, debtors' counsel, and the courts in dramatically different ways.

Because transactional immunity is no longer required to compel testimony over an assertion of the privilege, debtors remain at risk of prosecution after the compulsion of testimony. Instead, the Court has held that use and derivative use immunity is sufficient.⁸⁶ As a result, in the words of Justice Brennan, “. . . use immunity literally misses half the point of the privilege, for it permits the compulsion without removing the criminality.”⁸⁷ In short, the modern day privilege against self-incrimination in the bankruptcy setting is an anemic distant cousin of its former self.

F. Two Privileges from One Right

Clearly, two distinct privileges have emerged from one fundamental constitutional right. In the criminal setting, notice of the privilege must be given; waiver must be voluntary, knowing and intelligent; and no adverse inference may be drawn from an invocation of the privilege. In the civil setting, notice need not be given; waiver need not be voluntary, knowing, and intelligent; and an adverse inference may be drawn. As important as these differences are to judges, attorneys, and academics, it has the greatest impact on the civil litigant to whom no explanation is required. This is particularly true of the debtor in chapter 7 bankruptcy proceedings for at least three reasons: (1) the debtor's inability to voluntarily dismiss the proceedings;⁸⁸ (2) the debtor's forfeiture of ownership of books, records, and documents to the trustee as custodian of the estate;⁸⁹ and (3) the inference of waiver of the privilege that arises from the filing of statements and schedules with the petition.⁹⁰

The pro se debtor and the debtor with representation each need notice of the privilege, its scope, and its limitations no less than those who are subject to ⁸⁶ Kastigar, 406 U.S. at 462 (1972).

⁸⁷ Piccirillo v. New York, 400 U.S. 548, 567 (1971) (dissenting).

⁸⁸ In re Bartee, 317 B.R. 362, 366 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2004) (chapter 7 suit must be dismissed for cause). Chapter 11 debtors must also establish cause for a dismissal of their suit. 11 U.S.C. § 1107; In re Helmers, Bkrcty.D.Kan.2007, 361 B.R. 190. Chapter 12 and 13 debtors are given an absolute right to dismissal by statute, but the Eighth Circuit has held that a trustee may convert the case to chapter 7 (thereby requiring a show of cause) even after the debtor has moved for dismissal. 11 U.S.C. § 1208; 11 U.S.C. §1307; In re Graven, 936 F.2d 378, 387 (8th Cir. 1991); and In re Molitor, 76 F.3d 218, 220 (8th Cir. 1996).

⁸⁹ Ex Parte Fuller, 262 U.S. 91, 94 (1923) (holding that where the debtor is required to deliver books and papers in the bankruptcy proceedings, she is not privileged under the privilege against self-incrimination in the Fifth Amendment).

⁹⁰ Czarlinsky v. United States, 54 F.2d 889, 893 (10th Cir. 1931), cert. denied, 285 U.S. 549 (1932).

custodial interrogation.⁹¹ The constitutional protection intended for the benefit of all citizens is at risk when the existence of the privilege remains undisclosed. The value of the right against self-incrimination is implicated when the debtor is unaware of its existence. Without appropriate disclosures to the debtor regarding proper invocation, the possibility of inferred waiver of the privilege, and the consequences that flow from both invocation and waiver, the privilege serves no purpose.

II. THE IMPORTANCE OF THE PRIVILEGE

A. The Rise of the Pro Se Debtor in Bankruptcy

Over the last five years, the rate of pro se bankruptcy filings grew much faster than the rate of growth of overall bankruptcy filings, particularly in the western part of the United States.⁹² Non-pro se bankruptcy petitions rose 98 percent over the last five years, while pro se filings grew 187 percent over the same time period. Pro se chapter 7 (liquidation) filings jumped 208 percent, and pro se chapter 13 (reorganization) filings were up 189 percent. Between 2007 and 2011, pro se chapter 7 filings increased from 6 percent to 8 percent and the pro se chapter 13 filings increased from 6 percent to 10 percent.⁹³

To give these percentages real meaning, it is worthwhile to convert the percentages to raw numbers. For the period ending in June 2011 there were just over one million consumer chapter 7 bankruptcies.⁹⁴ The 8 percent figure represents nearly 84,000 pro se chapter 7 debtors in one year. Ten percent of all chapter 13 filings constituted nearly 43,000 during that same time period. Together, the total number of filings by pro se debtors has swollen to over 125,000 per year. Notably, this increase in pro se filings as a percentage of all filings occurred during a period when the total number of annual bankruptcy filings doubled.⁹⁵

⁹¹ The many scenarios under which the need for the privilege may arise are so varied that the scope of this article cannot extend to all. See United States v. Greer, 631 F.3d 608, 612 (2d Cir. 2011) cert. denied, 131 S. Ct. 1841 (U.S. 2011) (tattoo is “testimonial” such that the privilege against self-incrimination could apply).

⁹² The Third Branch, By the Numbers--Pro Se Filers in the Bankruptcy Courts, Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts (2011) available at http://www.uscourts.gov/News/TheThirdBranch/11-10-01/By_the_Numbers--Pro_Se_Filers_in_the_Bankruptcy_Courts.aspx (last visited 2/1/13).

⁹³ Id.

⁹⁴ The total number was 1,047,131. Id.

⁹⁵ The total number of bankruptcy filings for the period ending June 2007 was 751,056, while the same total for the period ending June 2011 was 1,529,560. <http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics/BankruptcyStatistics.aspx> (last visited 2/1/13)

The effect of this dramatic increase is not spread evenly around the country.⁹⁶ There appears to be some correlation between pro se filings and areas with reduced family income.⁹⁷ For example, pro se filings in the Central District of California represented 27.1 percent of all filings,⁹⁸ while in the Eastern District of California pro se filings were 16.5 percent of all filings.⁹⁹ In Arizona, pro se filings comprised 20.8 percent of all filings.¹⁰⁰

B. Protecting the Innocent

Many categories of people must be considered in the protection of Americans from the loss of hard-won liberties. The clearly guilty individual who must remain presumptively innocent and the truly innocent person, who is only seemingly guilty, must both be protected.¹⁰¹ The rights of each must be guarded by the attorney-client privilege from the public disclosure of her ⁹⁶ The Third Branch, By the Numbers--Pro Se Filers in the Bankruptcy Courts, Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts (2011) available at http://www.uscourts.gov/News/TheThirdBranch/11-10-01/By_the_Numbers--Pro_Se_Filers_in_the_Bankruptcy_Courts.aspx (last visited 2/1/13) (map showing percentage grouping of bankruptcy cases filed pro se by color).

⁹⁷ Ronald Brownstein and Scott Bland, The Geography of Pain, The National Journal (updated September 30, 2011) <http://www.nationaljournal.com/magazine/census-sheds-new-light-on-toll-of-great-recession-20110929> (last visited 2/1/13): Twenty states saw their median family incomes plummet at least a dizzying 5 percent over those two years [2008-2010]. The largest losses were clustered in the twin poles of Sun Belt and Rust Belt states: on the one hand, Arizona, Georgia, Florida, Nevada, Alabama, North Carolina, California, and South Carolina; on the other, Michigan, Indiana, and Ohio. (Oregon was the only state among the dozen largest losers that is not in either the Sun Belt or the Rust Belt.) A more diverse list of 17 other states lost between 3 and 5 percent of median family income. Id.

⁹⁸ There were 39,478 pro se filings in the Central District of California out of a total of 145,741 consumer filings. Id.

⁹⁹ There were 8,877 pro se filings compared to 53,888 total consumer filings in the Eastern District of California. The Third Branch, By the Numbers--Pro Se Filers in the Bankruptcy Courts, Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts (2011) available at http://www.uscourts.gov/News/TheThirdBranch/11-10-01/By_the_Numbers--Pro_Se_Filers_in_the_Bankruptcy_Courts.aspx (last visited 2/1/13) (map showing percentage grouping of bankruptcy cases filed pro se by color).

¹⁰⁰ In Arizona there were 8,625 pro se filings among the 41,377 total consumer filings. Id.

¹⁰¹ Coffin v. United States, 156 U.S. 432, 453 (1895) (“The principle that there is a presumption of innocence in favor of the accused is the undoubted law, axiomatic and elementary, and its enforcement lies at the foundation of the administration of our criminal law.”).

admissions to counsel.¹⁰² Regardless of whether she is guilty or innocent, her privilege against self-incrimination must be preserved through proper invocation, if necessary.¹⁰³ She must not be subjected to interrogation tactics that rob her of her right to remain silent and her right to stop the questioning.¹⁰⁴ She must remain innocent until she decides to waive her rights and enter a voluntary plea, or demand a trial at which her peers will weigh whether the state has proven each element of any charges beyond a reasonable doubt.¹⁰⁵

Protection of the rights of the clearly guilty in a criminal situation is often the easier problem for counsel, because the guilty often realize they need to exercise every legal right available to them.¹⁰⁶ Thus, the desire for and value of the evidentiary privilege is clear and urgent. The guilty client may seek counsel before there is a real threat of arrest or prosecution. As the book of Proverbs says: “The wicked flee when no man pursueth: but the righteous are bold as a lion.”¹⁰⁷ Fear is a powerful motivator, and those who believe themselves to be in violation of the law are more likely to seek to protect themselves, whether through concealment, flight, or legal counsel. On the other hand, it is equally true that the righteous or innocent are bold. They are apt to be far less cautious because they have no reason to suspect they are being pursued, making them all the more vulnerable.¹⁰⁸

And so though it may seem ironic, the truly innocent person is on the continuum of those whose rights need protecting.¹⁰⁹ This is true, not because of what she has done, but because of what someone else may have done. She may fall prey to the wrongdoer who would use her as a scapegoat. Law enforcement and vigilantes may target her as a suspect when the true perpetrator is not self-evident. She may be victimized by the ineptitude of investigators who overlook some clues and misdiagnose others. And, to be sure, she may naively incriminate herself because of her misplaced confidence in our system of justice

¹⁰² FED. R. EVID. 501; See 1 MCCORMICK ON EVIDENCE, 386-445 (6th ed. 2006).

¹⁰³ Berghuis v. Thompkins, 130 S.Ct. 2250, 2263-64 (2010) (holding that a suspect’s Miranda right to remain silent, stop questioning or request counsel must be invoked “unambiguously”) (citing Davis v. U.S., 512 U.S. at 459)).

¹⁰⁴ Miranda v. Arizona, 384 U.S. 436, 444 (1966) (“[T]he prosecution may not use statements, whether exculpatory or inculpatory, stemming from custodial interrogation of the defendant unless it demonstrates the use of procedural safeguards effective to secure the privilege against self-incrimination.”).

¹⁰⁵ U.S. CONST. amend. VI.

¹⁰⁶ This is true when the criminal conduct remains undiscovered and at all points in the criminal process.

¹⁰⁷ Proverbs 28:1 (King James).

¹⁰⁸ See infra note 102.

¹⁰⁹ Ohio v. Reiner, 532 U.S. 17, 21 (2001) (A person may assert privilege at trial of the accused despite her claim of innocence when she has “reasonable cause to apprehend danger from her answers.”).

and her inability to think like a criminal, a policeman, a prosecutor, or a judge. It is precisely because the innocent does not feel guilty that she is most vulnerable. Unlike her guilty counterpart, she feels no need to be guarded in her speech or conduct, nor does she sense a need for the protection afforded by counsel. In short, the system ostensibly designed for the protection of the innocent offers many opportunities for the forfeiture of her rights and liberties.¹¹⁰

When an innocent person does assert her privilege, another danger is the cultural bias that those who assert the privilege must in fact be guilty.¹¹¹ From a modern day perspective, our society may decry the injustices that gave rise to the privilege.¹¹² Yet, in a collective denial of our own cultural hypocrisy, there is ¹¹⁰ In 2011 in United States District Courts, dismissals and acquittals totaled 8,197 in criminal proceedings. United States Courts, Statistics available at <http://www.uscourts.gov/uscourts/Statistics/JudicialBusiness/2011/JudicialBusiness2011.pdf> 230 (last visited 2/1/13). In 2010 in federal criminal courts, 7,782 cases were dismissed and 415 defendants were acquitted. Dismissals and acquittals for the five year period beginning in 2005 totaled 41,709. Bureau of Justice Statistics, Office of Justice Programs, Federal Criminal Case Processing Statistics available at http://bjs.ojp.usdoj.gov/fjsrc/var.cfm?ttype=one_variable&agency=AOUSC&db_type=CrimCtCases&saf=OUT (last visited 2/1/13). One explanation for the number of dismissals and acquittals is that while the suspect originally appeared guilty, further investigation revealed her innocence. It is logical to assume that there is a direct relationship between the loss of the privilege and the increased likelihood of arrest, prosecution, and conviction because, by definition, the suspect is compelled to provide incriminating evidence against herself. This possibility of innocence is a key reason that the debtor must be informed of her privilege against self-incrimination. This need for disclosure is manifest in the number of exonerations discussed at note 111 infra. We trust the judicial system to convict the guilty and as a corollary, we trust it to exonerate the innocent. Therefore, if we are satisfied as a society that those who are found guilty are in fact guilty, despite the fact that we know some will ultimately be proven innocent, it is logical that we would trust the system to establish innocence even when we know some of those are guilty.

¹¹¹ Consider this internet article. The article questioned whether Florida governor Rick Scott had implied his own guilt by claiming the Fifth Amendment as a TV ad had so accused him of doing. Politifact Florida, available at <http://www.politifact.com/florida/statements/2010/oct/12/florida-democratic-party/does-rick-scott-invoking-fifth-amendment-imply-gui/> (last visited 3/10/2013).

¹¹² LAFAVE, ISRAEL, KING AND KERR, Criminal Procedure § 2.10(c) (3d ed.). The Court in Miranda noted that the privilege originated in the trial of John Lilburn who was made to take the Star Chamber Oath in 1637. The oath would have bound him to answer to all questions posed to him on any subject. He resisted the oath and declaimed the proceedings, because he believed that “no man’s conscience ought to be racked by oaths imposed, to answer to questions concerning himself in matters criminal.” On account of the Lilburn Trial, Parliament abolished the inquisitorial often a perception of guilt and an expectation that the accused should be compelled to speak and establish her innocence, or by her silence admit the truthfulness of the allegations, however damning.¹¹³ Society's expectation that the innocent person who is accused should speak arises from the perception that innocence is susceptible to proof. This view prevailed in the courts prior to the adoption of the privilege and is premised on the idea that only the guilty would remain silent in the face of the threat of criminal punishment.¹¹⁴ This perpetuates the "trilemma" of self-accusation, perjury, or contempt, that the privilege was designed to avoid.¹¹⁵ The accused must testify, lie, or face the possibility of contempt or conviction for her silence.

C. The Negative Proof Burden

In a civilized society, most individuals more readily imagine being the victim of crime than the perpetrator.¹¹⁶ The thought of establishing legal innocence may not seem frightening. Instead, a person may presume that our judicial system will protect her,¹¹⁷ as the law goes to great lengths to avoid

Court of Star Chamber. Miranda v. Arizona, 384 U.S. 436, 458-59 (1966). The Court also illustrated the fact that custodial interrogation (even without brutality) takes a heavy toll on individuals with the following examples: In Townsend v. Sain, the defendant was a 19-year-old heroin addict, described as a 'near mental defective.' The defendant in Lynumn v. State of Illinois, was a woman who confessed to the arresting officer after being importuned to 'cooperate' in order to prevent her children from being taken by relief authorities. This Court as in those cases reversed the conviction of a defendant in Haynes v. State of Washington, whose persistent request during his interrogation was to phone his wife or attorney. Miranda v. Arizona, 384 U.S. 436, 455-56 (1966).

¹¹³ Ted Sampson-Jones, Making Defendants Speak, 93 MINN. L. REV. 1327, 1328 (2009) ("Courts should adjust the mix by rewarding defendants more for testifying and punishing them more for declining to testify.").

¹¹⁴ LAFAVE, ISRAEL, KING AND KERR, Criminal Procedure § 2.10(c) (3d Ed.).

¹¹⁵ Pennsylvania v. Muniz, 496 U.S. 582, 596 (1990) ("At its core, the privilege reflects our fierce 'unwillingness to subject those suspected of crime to the cruel trilemma of self-accusation, perjury or contempt. . . .").

¹¹⁶ In this context, a civilized society is one governed by the rule of law and in which most people are law-abiding.

¹¹⁷ In a recent study, 72 participants (first year Psychology students) were deemed guilty or innocent of a mock theft and were apprehended for investigation. Motivated to avoid prosecution and trial, they were confronted by a neutral, sympathetic, or hostile male "detective" who sought a waiver of their Miranda rights. Participants who were truly innocent were significantly more likely to sign a waiver than those who were guilty. The study concludes that it was a naive belief in the power of their innocence to set them free that caused most to waive their rights even in a hostile detective condition, where the risk of interrogation was apparent. Saul M.

asking a litigant to prove a negative proposition precisely because of the admitted difficulty.¹¹⁸ Statutes of limitation and statutes of fraud are examples of society's desire to avoid injustice to defendants in civil and criminal proceedings due to the concerns about the insufficiency of evidence.¹¹⁹

The law and society acknowledge that proving a negative proposition, such as true innocence, may require much more evidence than proving an affirmative proposition, such as guilt.¹²⁰ The danger is the possibility that the accused is truly innocent, coupled with the magnitude of the harm arising from a wrongful conviction.¹²¹ The privilege protects the truly innocent person whose testimony would make her appear guilty.¹²²

D. The Presumptively Innocent

The value of the privilege is no less important to the debtor who is obviously guilty than it is to the debtor who is only seemingly guilty. The privilege protects the clearly guilty person by preserving the presumption of innocence and the right to a fair trial.¹²³ The presumption of innocence is critical to providing fundamental fairness to the accused in a criminal setting. It is diminished to the extent that the accused is compelled to testify through the inadvertent loss of the privilege. Because guilt is a legal conclusion that must Kassin and Rebecca J. Norwick, Why People Waive Their Miranda Rights: The Power of Innocence, Law and Human Behavior, Vol. 28, No. 2 (2004).

¹¹⁸ The Burden of Proof is on the civil litigant seeking redress to adduce the evidence necessary and affirmatively prove the elements of the cause of action or the criminal action the elements of the crime. Sadeghi v. INS, 40 F.3d 1139, 1143 (10th Cir. 1994); Rockwell v. Commissioner, 512 F.2d 882, 887 (9th Cir. 1975); People v. Orth, 530 N.E.2d 210, 215 (Ill. 1988); Lublin v. Central Islip Psychiatric Ctr., 372 N.E.2d 307, 310 (N.Y. 1977); Elkins v. United States, 364 U.S. 206, 218 (1960).

¹¹⁹ 51 AM. JUR. 2D, Limitation of Actions § 9; 73 AM. JUR. 2D, Statute of Frauds § 425.

¹²⁰ Elkins, 364 U.S. at 218.

¹²¹ Consider Eddie Joe Lloyd, a mentally handicapped man, who falsely confessed to the rape and murder of a young woman after police led him to believe that he would smoke out the real killer. Innocence Project, Know the Cases, available at http://www.innocenceproject.org/Content/Eddie_Joe_Lloyd.php (last visited 3/10/2013). See discussion infra at Part II E and notes 109 and 111. See also NOTORIOUS CASES OF WRONGFUL CONVICTION 4.

¹²² See infra note 111.

¹²³ United States v. Impson, 531 F.2d 274, 277 (5th Cir. 1976) (“Silence is the right of the innocent as well as of the guilty.”); De Luna v. United States, 308 F.2d 140, 151 (5th Cir. 1962) (“To make the privilege against self-incrimination effective and to preserve the presumption of innocence, almost all of the states adopted laws forbidding comment on a defendant's neglect or refusal to testify and decreeing that no inference should be drawn from his silence.”).

await the outcome of judicial proceedings, preservation of the privilege is essential to protect the presumptively innocent. The American legal system is founded on an accusatorial basis, not inquisitorial.¹²⁴

E. The Wrongfully Convicted

The risk of wrongful arrest, prosecution, and conviction is real. With modern day forensics, the number of innocent people who have been wrongfully convicted is increasingly evident. As of March 11, 2013, the Innocence Project has exonerated 303 persons through DNA testing in the United States.¹²⁵ The Innocence Project details each one of the first 250 DNA exoneration cases and includes statistics on common causes of the wrongful convictions.¹²⁶ The protection of the innocent is inextricably linked to the presumption of innocence and the privilege against self-incrimination. False confessions and incriminating statements lead to wrongful conviction in approximately 27 percent of cases.¹²⁷ Nearly 10% of exonerees pled guilty to crimes they did not commit.¹²⁸

Wrongful convictions are more likely to occur when an adverse inference is drawn from exercise of the privilege, causing an innocent person to appear guilty. Although jurors may be instructed not to consider a defendant's refusal to testify, in reality, it is difficult for a jury instruction to override the temptation to believe that the defendant has something to hide.¹²⁹

III. THE PLIGHT OF THE DEBTOR IN RETAINING THE PRIVILEGE

Even when the debtor is aware of the privilege, it may be lost at any time through ignorance and inadvertence. To the extent that debtor is not aware that ¹²⁴ Rogers v. Richmond, 365 U.S. 534, 541 (1961).

¹²⁵ The Innocence Project, available at <http://www.innocenceproject.org/> (last visited 3/11/13). See infra note 106.

¹²⁶ Innocence Project, 250 Exonerated, Too Many Wrongfully Convicted, 1, 51 (2010), available at http://www.innocenceproject.org/docs/InnocenceProject_250.pdf (last visited 2/1/13).

¹²⁷ Id. at 32-33.

¹²⁸ Id. See also note 107 infra.

¹²⁹ In 1980, one study concluded that defendants who appeared to withhold evidence were judged more harshly, indicating that something (we don't know what) goes on in the mind of the jury. E. GIL CLARY AND DAVID R. SHAFFER, Effects of Evidence Withholding and a Defendant's Prior Record on Juridic Decisions, THE JOURNAL OF SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY, 237 (1980). Another study concluded, however, that pleading the fifth did not have an effect on mock jurors. SHELLEY M. FISCHER AND LAWRENCE A. FEHR, The Effect Of Defendant's Plea On Mock Juror Decisions, 125 THE JOURNAL OF SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY, 531, 531-33 (1985).

the privilege may be waived, or how it may be waived, the privilege is at risk. Retaining the privilege is as critical as claiming it.

A. Invocation of the Privilege

During the course of the bankruptcy proceedings, a debtor may be exposed to various instances in which she may be asked to provide incriminating evidence and the need to invoke the privilege. The Code requires the debtor to attend a meeting of creditors and be orally examined under oath by a trustee.¹³⁰ The debtor must answer questions of creditors at that meeting. The debtor may also be deposed in a 2004 examination.¹³¹ Each of these proceedings is recorded and the examining party has the right to have the examination reduced to writing.¹³²

The Bankruptcy Code anticipates the dilemma of the debtor who is asked to provide incriminating testimony under oath.¹³³ The Code provides that a debtor may be granted immunity regarding incriminating testimony prior to giving the testimony.¹³⁴ If the debtor is granted immunity and persists in refusing to answer questions, the debtor may be denied a discharge.¹³⁵ If the debtor is not granted immunity, she may refuse to testify based on a proper assertion of her privilege against self-incrimination.¹³⁶

Although the Code does not specifically define the type or scope of immunity required to compel the debtor to testify, the Court has held that the combination of use and derivative use immunity is sufficient.¹³⁷ Transactional immunity is not required.¹³⁸ For these reasons, the debtor needs assistance of counsel to avoid the pitfalls. Counsel's explanation of the debtor's rights and responsibilities at each juncture protects the debtor against the inadvertent loss of the privilege.

¹³⁰ 11 U.S.C. § 341 (2006) (“Immunity for persons required to submit to examination, to testify, or to provide information in a case under this title may be granted. . .”).

¹³¹ FED. R. BANKR. P. 2004 (2012).

¹³² In re Jackson, 13 F. Cas. 204, 205 (E.D.N.C. 1874).

¹³³ 11 U.S.C. § 542(e) (2006) (Subject to any applicable privilege, the debtor must turn over financial documents).

¹³⁴ 11 U.S.C. § 344 (2006).

¹³⁵ See 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(6)(B) (“the court shall grant a discharge, unless the debtor has refused in the case, on the ground of self-incrimination, to . . . testify, after the debtor has been granted immunity with respect to the matter concerning which such privilege was invoked.”).

¹³⁶ Krasney v. Nam (In re Gi Yeong Nam), 245 B.R. 216, 224 (Bankr. E.D. Pa. 2000); In re Potter, 88 B.R. 843 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1988).

¹³⁷ Kastigar v. United States, 406 U.S. 441, 452 (1972).

¹³⁸ Id.

1. Blanket Invocation is not a “proper assertion”

Though the debtor may wish to properly assert her privilege against self-incrimination, certain requirements must be met for an assertion to be proper. The privilege may be properly asserted if there is (1) compelled disclosure that is (2) found to be testimonial and (3) incriminatory.¹³⁹ A debtor may not use a blanket invocation of the privilege to refuse to answer all questions in a proceeding.¹⁴⁰ Instead, a debtor must be ready to show, related to each question, that there is a real danger of incrimination,¹⁴¹ that there is some nexus of risk,¹⁴² or that the information provided will provide a link in the chain of information required for prosecution.¹⁴³ Furthermore, the debtor must show that the fear of prosecution is more than fanciful.¹⁴⁴

The Supreme Court has recognized that these requirements for invoking privilege creates a paradox in that, if a witness is required to prove the hazard of prosecution, she would be compelled to surrender the very information and protection that the privilege against self-incrimination is designed to protect.¹⁴⁵ To avoid this result, some courts have required the debtor to explain the incriminatory nature of specific questions under oath, in camera, or by ¹³⁹ In re Connelly, 59 B.R. 421, 430-31 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1986).

¹⁴⁰ Id. at 430; accord In re Brandenburg, No. 06-30709, 2007 WL 117391 (Bankr. E.D. Tenn. Jan 10, 2007); see also In re ICS Cybertronics, Inc., 107 B.R. 821, 829 (Bankr. N.D.N.Y. 1989) (holding that a former officer of a corporation was not entitled to issue a blanket refusal to testify at an examination under FED. R. BANKR. P. 2004, but was ordered to answer each question propounded to him unless he proffered particularized responses to each, explaining some nexus between the risk of criminal prosecution and the information requested).

¹⁴¹ In re Morganroth, 718 F.2d 161, 167 (6th Cir. 1983); In re Mudd, 95 B.R. 426, 427 (Bankr. D. Tex. 1989).

¹⁴² Martin-Trigona v. Gouletas, 634 F.2d 354, 360 (7th Cir. 1980).

¹⁴³ In re French, 127 B.R. 434 (Bankr. D. Minn. 1991) (holding that a Ch. 11 debtor, charged with a felony, may assert her Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination at the first meeting of creditors without losing her right to discharge if the debtor is not offered immunity, but must do so as to each question posed, and that where the questions would potentially furnish a link in the chain of evidence needed to prosecute, no further inquiry is needed).

¹⁴⁴ In re Mart, 90 B.R. 547, 550 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1988) (permitting a discharge where the debtor was potentially involved in her husband's alleged criminal conduct, and invoked her Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination, because the fear of prosecution was more than fanciful); see also In re Johnson, 387 B.R. 728 (S.D. Ohio 2008) (denying the debtors a discharge where the debtor purported to “plead the Fifth” in refusing to answer questions at the first meeting of creditors, but where there was no fear of prosecution; rather the debtor was blatantly trying to avoid cooperation with the Trustee).

¹⁴⁵ Hoffman v. United States, 341 U.S. 479, 486-87 (1951).

affidavit.¹⁴⁶ The debtor may not use the privilege as a basis to refuse to attend the section 341 meeting of creditors¹⁴⁷ or to refuse to provide the required schedules and statement of financial affairs.¹⁴⁸

2. The Timing and Consequence of Asserting of the privilege

A debtor may make a proper assertion of her right against self-incrimination throughout the bankruptcy process.¹⁴⁹ She may invoke her right in the completion of the bankruptcy schedules, during oral testimony, and responding to requests for production of documents.

However, while the debtor may avoid exposing herself to incrimination through her direct testimony, she may be subject to other consequences. Among other things, adverse inferences may be drawn in the bankruptcy proceedings, adversary proceedings, in Rule 2004 examinations,¹⁵⁰ and criminal proceedings.¹⁵¹

¹⁴⁶ In re Connelly, 59 B.R. 421, 445, 447-48 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1986)

¹⁴⁷ In re Russell, 392, B.R. 315, 368 (Bankr. E.D. Tenn. 2008).

¹⁴⁸ Id at 361.

¹⁴⁹ Berghuis v. Thompkins, 130 S.Ct. 2250, 2253 (2010) (a suspect's Miranda right to remain silent, stop questioning or request counsel must be invoked "unambiguously") (citing Davis v. U.S., 512 U.S. at 459). It must be reasoned that a civil litigant, including the debtor, in a non-custodial context would not be allowed to invoke the privilege more easily, and thus the best practice is to invoke the privilege through an assertion that is unambiguous.

¹⁵⁰ Chase Manhattan Bank, N.A., v. Frenville, 67 B.R. 858, 862 (Bankr. D.N.J. 1986) (adverse inferences used to deny dischargability to certain debts where the debtor asserted the 5th Amendment to questions regarding their dischargability); Clark & Gregory, Inc. v. Hanson (In re Hanson), 225 B.R. 366, 371 (Bankr. W.D. Mich. 1986) (Debtor who invoked 5th Amendment privilege throughout the discovery process for an adversarial proceeding was not allowed to waive such privilege on the day of trial and testify because of unfair prejudice and surprise.); Federal Savings & Loan Ins. Corp. v. Sutherlin 109 B.R. 700, 706 (Bankr. E.D. La. 1989) (Receiver was entitled to rely upon and draw a negative inference from Debtor's invocation of his 5th Amendment rights during a 2004 examination in motion to dismiss case.); United States v. (Under Seal) (In re Grand Jury Subpoena), 836 F.2d 1468, 1476 (4th Cir. 1988) ("the trier of fact may also use the silence of a deponent for relevant inference that it creates").

¹⁵¹ Czarlinsky v. United States, 54 F.2d 889, 893 (10th Cir. 1931), cert. denied, 285 U.S. 549 (1932) ("It is our opinion that defendant, by filing the schedules in bankruptcy without objection, waived his privilege as to any use to which such schedules would be put, including evidence in a criminal prosecution."); See Part III.B.1 infra.

3. Invocation in the Petition and Schedules

The Code requires that a debtor file a list of creditors, a schedule of assets and liabilities, a schedule of current income and current expenses, a statement of the debtor's financial affairs, and other schedules.¹⁵² The Code gives the court discretion to allow a debtor to omit certain information.¹⁵³ Historically, courts have allowed the debtor to refrain from turning over incriminating schedules.¹⁵⁴ Courts have held that debtors must complete schedules when there is clearly no direct and apparent self-incrimination that necessarily attaches to the information required by the schedules.¹⁵⁵ However, if the court finds that the debtor's refusal to provide information required by the Code is justified under the Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination, it may excuse compliance with the requirement.¹⁵⁶

4. Production of Documents

At various times throughout the bankruptcy proceedings, the debtor may be asked to produce documents related to the bankruptcy estate, which is created by the filing of the petition.¹⁵⁷ Examples of such documents include bank statements, tax returns, deeds, and titles. As in other types of civil cases, the Supreme Court has held that the incriminating contents of documents in the debtor's possession are not privileged because there has been no compulsion to create the documents, and the documents were created voluntarily prior to the request for turnover.¹⁵⁸ However, the Court has found that the act of producing documents itself may be sufficiently testimonial to warrant Fifth Amendment

¹⁵² 11 U.S.C. § 521; FED. R. BANKR. P. 1007, 1009, 4002, & 9011.

¹⁵³ See 11 U.S.C. § 521(a)(1)(B) (2006) (“the debtor shall file a list of creditors; and unless the court orders otherwise-, [other schedules]”) (emphasis added).

¹⁵⁴ See e.g., In re Kanter, 117 F. 356, 357 (S.D.N.Y. 1902); In re U. S. Hoffman Can Corp., 373 F.2d 622, 629 (3d Cir. 1967).

¹⁵⁵ See e.g., In re Arend, 286 F. 516, 517-18 (2d Cir. 1922); Padolin v. Leshar Warner Dry Goods Co., 210 F. 97, 102-04 (3d Cir. 1914).

¹⁵⁶ In re United States Hoffman Can Corp., 373 F.2d 622, 626-27 (3d Cir. 1967); In re Connelly, 59 B.R. 421, 447-48 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1986); In re Kaufman, 35 B.R. 26, 28 (Bankr. D. Haw. 1983).

¹⁵⁷ 11 U.S.C. § 541(a). The commencement of a case creates an estate comprised of all legal and equitable interests of the debtor in property as of the commencement of the estate wherever located and by whomever held except as provided by § 541(b) and (c)(2). The trustee is the representative of the estate. See § 323(a). Pursuant to § 521(a)(4) “[t]he debtor shall...surrender to the trustee all property of the estate and any recorded information, including books, documents, records, and papers, relating to property of the estate, whether or not immunity is granted under section 344 of this title,” (emphasis supplied).

¹⁵⁸ Fisher v. United States, 425 U.S. 391, 410 n.11 (1976).

protection, notwithstanding that the information in certain documents may contain incriminating information.¹⁵⁹ For instance, by producing the documents, the debtor may be making admissions that (1) the documents exist, (2) that the documents are in the possession and control of the debtor, or (3) that the debtor believes that the documents she produces are the documents that were requested, thereby authenticating the documents.¹⁶⁰ In such a case, a grant of use and derivative use immunity is required in order to compel the testimony sought.¹⁶¹

The first step in determining whether a debtor may invoke her privilege against self-incrimination and thus refuse to produce documents is to determine whether the documents are property of the debtor's estate.¹⁶² The privilege against self-incrimination only applies to property in which the debtor holds title.¹⁶³ If the title to the documents is vested in the bankruptcy estate or another third party, the debtor may not be able to invoke her privilege to suppress the documents.¹⁶⁴ If the requested documents are property of the bankruptcy estate, courts have found that the turnover of those assets is not testimonial and is therefore not in conflict with the privilege against self-incrimination.¹⁶⁵

¹⁵⁹ United States v. Doe, 465 U.S. 605, 617 (1984); Fisher v. United States, 425 U.S. 391, 410 (1976).

¹⁶⁰ In re Connelly, 59 B.R. 421, 440 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1986).

¹⁶¹ Doe, 465 U.S. 605, 617 (1984); See discussion infra at note 271.

¹⁶² See 11 U.S.C. § 541(a) (defining property of the estate); Property claimed as exempt is property of the estate until the court allows the exemption or the time for objections to exemptions has lapsed. In re Bucchino, 439 B.R. 761, 770-71 (Bankr. D.N.M. 2010); In re Campbell, 313 B.R. 313, 320-21 (B.A.P. 10th Cir. 2004); In re Calvin, 329 B.R. 589, 601-02 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2005); Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. v. Jimenez, 406 B.R. 935, 940-45 (D.N.M. 2008). For the duration that documents are property of the estate, the trustee would potentially be able to examine (and even photocopy) anything incriminating. In those jurisdictions that require the debtor to have ownership and possession to assert the privilege (see infra notes 169 and 170), the debtor would not technically be able to assert the privilege in this time period. See 11 U.S.C. § 522(l) and FED. R. BANKR. P. 40003(b)(1) for requirement to file claim of exemptions and procedure for objections.

¹⁶³ Dier v. Banton, 262 U.S. 147, 149-50 (1923); In re Fuller, 262 U.S. 92, 93-94 (1923).

¹⁶⁴ 11 U.S.C. § 521(a)(4); United States v. Falley, 489 F.2d 33, 41 (2d Cir. 1973); United States v. Egenberg, 443 F.2d 512, 517-18 (3d Cir. 1971); also In re Lufkin, 255 B.R. 204, 210 (Bankr. E.D. Tenn. 2000) (Debtor-Attorney could not assert Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination to prevent receiver, who had been appointed to take possession of law firm prior to involuntary bankruptcy, from disclosing documents to Trustee).

¹⁶⁵ In re Krisle, 54 B.R. 330, 340-41 (Bankr. D.S.D. 1985); In re Deveraux, 48 B.R. 644, 646 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 1985); In re Crabtree, 39 B.R. 726, 732 (Bankr. E.D. Tenn. 1984); In re Kaufman, 35 B.R. 26, 27-28 (Bankr. D. Haw. 1983).

Courts disagree on the proper test for deciding whether requested documents are property of the debtor's estate for the purpose of asserting the privilege. One view is that possession alone is sufficient basis for assertion of the privilege. The other view is that ownership and possession are necessary. For instance, the Second Circuit has held that ownership of documents is essential to suppress them on Fifth Amendment grounds.¹⁶⁶ In order to rightfully assert her privilege against self-incrimination, a debtor must show ownership and possession of the requested documents, and she must show that they are self-incriminatory.¹⁶⁷ The Ninth Circuit has held that possession of the documents by the debtor may be a necessary and sufficient condition to invoke the privilege.¹⁶⁸ That court reasoned that even if the debtor did not own the requested documents, there is the same potential for incrimination based on identification, possession, and authentication.¹⁶⁹ However, even if the documents are not property of the estate, and the debtor is in possession of the documents, the debtor must show that the act of producing the documents is sufficiently testimonial to warrant Fifth Amendment protection.¹⁷⁰

5. Assertion of the privilege in Oral Testimony

During bankruptcy proceedings, the debtor is expected to give oral testimony at the meeting of creditors and may be asked to testify at 2004 exams or certain hearings.¹⁷¹ The debtor may be granted immunity regarding her oral testimony under part V of title 18 of the United States Code for the purposes of this examination.¹⁷² Neither the Criminal Code nor the Bankruptcy Code specifies the type of immunity to be granted, but the Court has held that a grant of use and derivative use immunity is sufficient to compel the debtor to testify under oath.¹⁷³

If the debtor is not offered immunity, the debtor may refuse to testify under the privilege and still retain her right to a discharge.¹⁷⁴ The use of the privilege in chapter 7 consumer cases is well documented.¹⁷⁵ However, assertion of the ¹⁶⁶ United States v. Falley, 489 F.2d 33, 41 (2d Cir. 1973).

¹⁶⁷ Id.

¹⁶⁸ United States v. Cohen, 388 F.2d 464, 468 (9th Cir. 1967).

¹⁶⁹ Id.

¹⁷⁰ In re Ross, 156 B.R. 272, 275-77 (Bankr. D. Idaho 1993).

¹⁷¹ 11 U.S.C. § 341 (2006); FED. R. BANKR. P. 2004.

¹⁷² 11 U.S.C. § 344 (2006). See 18 U.S.C. § 6001 et. Seq. (2006).

¹⁷³ Kastigar v. United States, 406 U.S. 441 (1972).

¹⁷⁴ 11 U.S.C. 727(a)(6)(A); Turner v. Wlodarski (In re Minton Group, Inc.), 43 B.R. 705, 709 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1984); Chrysler Capital Corp v. Salzman (In re Salzman), 61 B.R. 878, 889 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1986); In re Connelly, 59 B.R. 421at 426 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1986); In re Hulon, 92 B.R. 670, 673 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1988).

¹⁷⁵ Turner, 43 B.R. at 709.

privilege in a chapter 13 is problematic because of the requirement that the debtor's plan be submitted in good faith.¹⁷⁶ Unless immunity is granted the privilege may be invoked to avoid incriminating questions or offering other incriminating information considered testimonial whether during discovery or trial.¹⁷⁷ The debtor may invoke the privilege in bankruptcy to justify a refusal to provide information otherwise relevant to the administration of the estate.¹⁷⁸

B. Adverse Consequences

1. Adverse Inferences

Though the debtor may properly assert her privilege to avoid revealing incriminatory evidence, she may face adverse consequences. When a debtor invokes her Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination in civil proceedings, adverse inferences may be drawn from the invocation¹⁷⁹ by receivers, Trustees, and the Court.¹⁸⁰ In some situations, such inferences may lead to certain debts being deemed nondischargeable.¹⁸¹

¹⁷⁶ 11 U.S.C. § 1325(a)(3); In re Girdaukas, 92 B.R. 373, 376 (Bankr. E.D. Wis. 1988) (supporting use of Fifth Amendment in chapter 7, but noting that it may be difficult for a debtor to establish good faith plan under chapter 13 while using the Fifth Amendment privilege).

¹⁷⁷ Grand Jury Proceedings (Williams), 995 F.2d 1013, 1018 n.11 (11th Cir. 1993).

¹⁷⁸ In re Hyde, 235 B.R. 539, 542 n.1 (S.D.N.Y. 1999).

¹⁷⁹ See In re Brandenburg, No. 06-30709, 2007 WL 117391 (Bankr. E.D. Tenn. Jan 10, 2007).

¹⁸⁰ See United States v. (Under Seal) (In re Grand Jury Subpoena), 836 F.2d 1468, 1476 (4th Cir. 1988) ("the trier of fact may also use the silence of a deponent for relevant inference that it creates"); Fed. Sav. & Loan Ins. Corp. v. Sutherlin, 109 B.R. 700, 706 (E.D. La. 1989) (stating that a receiver was entitled to draw a negative inference from the debtor's invocation of his Fifth Amendment rights during a Rule 2004 examination and rely upon the inference in its motion to dismiss the case).

¹⁸¹ In re Asbury, Bankr. No. 08-21989, Adversary No. 09-02012, 2011 WL 44911 (W.D. Mo. 2011) (Relying, in part, on a debtor's assertion of the 5th Amendment as to false statements regarding assets, in determining that the chapter 7 debts were non-dischargeable under 523(a)(2)(B)); Chase Manhattan Bank, N.A. v. Frenville, 67 B.R. 858, 862 (Bankr. D.N.J. 1986) (adverse inferences used to deny dischargeability to certain debts where the debtor asserted the 5th Amendment to questions regarding their dischargeability).

2. Denial of Discharge

The court may deny a discharge¹⁸² if the debtor has refused in the case to obey a lawful order of the court, to testify to self-incriminating matters after being granted immunity, or to respond to a question approved by the court without a proper assertion of the right against self-incrimination.¹⁸³ If the debtor refuses a court ordered inspection of documents, there is no violation of the Code if the refusal is based on a proper assertion of the right against self-incrimination.¹⁸⁴

A 2004 Exam is another instance in which a debtor may assert the privilege. The bankruptcy court does not implicitly certify questions posed at a Rule 2004 examination.¹⁸⁵ Thus, validly asserting a debtor's Fifth Amendment rights, without more, is not sufficient grounds to deny a discharge.¹⁸⁶

3. Inability to Testify in Other Proceedings

Some consequences may affect the debtor's ability to testify in subsequent or contemporaneous (parallel) proceedings. For instance, if a debtor has refused to testify in prior proceedings based on a proper assertion of her rights, then the debtor may be barred from testifying in a later proceeding to any matters that were raised or could have been raised in the prior proceeding.¹⁸⁷ The debtor's inability to testify in a later proceeding complicates strategic planning for future proceedings and makes assessment of the impact on anticipated proceedings difficult, if not impossible.

¹⁸² 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(1)-(12) (2006). The chapter 7 discharge provision lists 12 grounds for objection to discharge. 11 U.S.C. § 1328(a) and (c) (2006) lists the grounds for objection to discharge in chapter 13. The grounds for objection to discharge in chapter 12 are listed in § 1228(a) and (c) (2006). The grounds for objection to the discharge for an individual debtor in chapter 11 are listed at 11 U.S.C. § 1141(d)(3) (2006).

¹⁸³ 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(6) (2006).

¹⁸⁴ See In re Bartel, Not Reported in B.R., 2009 WL 2461727 (Bankr. D. Mass. Aug. 10, 2009).

¹⁸⁵ See In re Merena, 413 B.R. 792, 819 (Bankr. D. Mont. 2009).

¹⁸⁶ See In re Ogden, 251 B.R. 441, 7 (Unpublished B.A.P. 10th Cir. 1999).

¹⁸⁷ See e.g. In re Nat'l Audit Def. Network, 367 B.R. 207, 216-17 (Bankr. D. Nev. 2007); United States v. Talco Contractors, Inc., 153 F.R.D. 501, 504-07 (W.D.N.Y. 1994); Clark & Gregory, Inc. v. Hanson (In re Hanson), 225 B.R. 366, 372 (Bankr. W.D. Mich. 1986).

4. Contempt of Court and imprisonment

Another consequence the debtor may face is contempt of court.¹⁸⁸ A proper invocation of the privilege in one hearing does not automatically carry the privilege over to subsequent hearings.¹⁸⁹ If the debtor asserts her privilege as to certain questions in one hearing, but testifies to those facts in a later hearing, she is not entitled to then re-assert her privilege as to those matters.¹⁹⁰ If the debtor disobeys a court order regarding those matters, supposing to rely on her previously asserted privilege, the court may use its contempt power to impose sanctions on the debtor, including fines and imprisonment.¹⁹¹

5. Dismissal of the Bankruptcy

Even if the debtor's Fifth Amendment assertion of the privilege is properly based, her case may be dismissed if her assertion hampers the trustee's ability to administer the bankruptcy estate.¹⁹² The court may dismiss the case with or without prejudice. If the court dismisses the case without prejudice, the debtor may file her petition after the threat of prosecution passes.¹⁹³ Although this may seem a reasonable solution, it is problematic for the debtor in that the protection afforded against creditors' claims is lost when the automatic stay is no longer in place. In addition, there are negative implications for the debtor in attempting to file another bankruptcy within the succeeding year.¹⁹⁴

¹⁸⁸ 11 U.S.C. § 105; FED. R. BANKR. P. 9020; And see note 185 infra.

¹⁸⁹ See In re Weerawat, 2007 WL 710160 (Bankr. D. Mass. Mar. 6, 2007).

¹⁹⁰ Id.

¹⁹¹ Id.; See also Martin-Trigona v. Belford, 732 F.2d 170, 173-34 (2d Cir. 1984); In re Sterling-Harris Ford, Inc., 315 F.2d 277, 278-279 (7th Cir. 1963).

¹⁹² See In re Blan, 239 B.R. 385, 397-98 (W.D. Ark. 1999); In re Moses, 792 F. Supp. 529, 532-36, 38 (Bankr. E.D. Mich. 1992); In re Fekos, 148 B.R. 10 (Bankr. W.D. Penn. 1992); Scarfia v. Holiday Bank, 129 B.R. 671, 675 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1990) (stating that a court could dismiss a case sua sponte if it found that the trustee was unable to administer the estate); In re Connelly, 59 B.R. 421, 446-48 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1986).

¹⁹³ See In re Pelko, 201 B.R. 331, 333 (Bankr. D. Conn. 1996).

¹⁹⁴ 11 U.S.C. §362(c)(3) (2006). The refiling of a consumer bankruptcy case by an individual after a dismissal within the preceding one year period of a pending consumer case other than under 11 U.S.C. § 707(b) results in the termination of the stay with respect to the debtor on the 30th day after the filing of the later case. The court may extend the stay only after notice and a hearing. The debtor has the burden of demonstrating that the filing of the later case is in good faith as to the creditors to be stayed. A case is presumed not to be in good faith, and the presumption must be overcome by clear and convincing evidence.

6. Implications in Criminal Proceedings

Invocation or waiver of the privilege against self-incrimination in bankruptcy may have consequences in the criminal prosecution context as well.¹⁹⁵ Absent immunity, plaintiffs may invoke the Fifth Amendment in response to incriminating questions during discovery or trial at any stage of the criminal process.¹⁹⁶ But, although a bankruptcy court may enforce a validly issued protective order,¹⁹⁷ a grand jury subpoena may take precedence over a validly issued protective order.¹⁹⁸ This leaves the debtor at risk during the pendency of the bankruptcy even when the incriminating information appears to be protected.

C. Waiver of the Privilege

A knowing and intelligent waiver of the right is not required in a noncustodial setting.¹⁹⁹ Thus, it is possible for a debtor to lose the benefit of the privilege in the context of a bankruptcy without actual knowledge of the waiver because the setting is viewed as noncustodial.²⁰⁰

The Supreme Court has made it clear that the privilege is waived if it is not invoked.²⁰¹ In other words, the privilege is not self-executing. Under certain circumstances, the waiver may be inferred from a witness' course of conduct or prior statements concerning the subject of the case.²⁰² The waiver is not to be ¹⁹⁵ See e.g. In re Harris, 221 U.S. 274, 278-79 (1911) (Holmes, J.) (“That is one of the misfortunes of bankruptcy if it follows crime. The right not to be compelled to be a witness against oneself is not a right to appropriate property that may tell one’s story.”)

¹⁹⁶ Grand Jury Proceedings (Williams), 995 F.2d 1013, 1018 n.11 (11th Cir. 1993).

¹⁹⁷ Fed. R. Civ. P. 26 (c); Martindell v. Int'l Tel. & Tel. Corp., 594 F.2d 291 (2d Cir. 1979).

¹⁹⁸ United States v. Janet Greeson’s A Place For Us, Inc., (In re Grand Jury Subpoena), 62 F.3d 1222, 1225 (9th Cir. 1995).

¹⁹⁹ Garner v. United States, 424 U.S. 648 (1976).

²⁰⁰ Yarborough v. Alvarado, 541 U.S. 652 (2004) (holding that citizen is not in custody if a reasonable person in his situation would have felt free to “terminate the interrogation and leave”); Scarfia v. Holiday Bank, 129 B.R. 671, 675 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1990); Compare 11 U.S.C. § 303, (the traditional rule that “a waiver will not be lightly inferred,” still applies in involuntary cases) with In re Hulon, 92 B.R. 670, 673 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1988).

²⁰¹ Rogers v. United States, 340 U.S. 367, 371 (1951) (The privilege against self-incrimination is waived if it is not invoked) (citing United States v. Murdock, 284 U.S. 141, 148 (1931)).

²⁰² Rivoli Grain Co. v. Litton (In re Litton), 74 B.R. 557, 560 (Bankr. C.D. Ill. 1987).

lightly inferred, and the courts indulge every reasonable presumption against finding a testimonial waiver.²⁰³ However, the mere fact that a waiver may be inferred creates a danger of inadvertent incrimination for the debtor. The inference of a waiver is drawn if the statements have created a significant likelihood that the finder of fact will be prone to rely on a distorted view of the truth, and the debtor had reason to know that her prior statements would be interpreted as a waiver.²⁰⁴

Filing bankruptcy schedules and statements may constitute a waiver of the privilege.²⁰⁵ In an adversary proceeding, filing an answer and responding to discovery requests may cause a waiver.²⁰⁶ Likewise, an affidavit operates like a testimonial statement and may be interpreted as a waiver.²⁰⁷ On the other hand, answering some questions prior to asserting the privilege will not necessarily operate as a waiver as to all questions presented.²⁰⁸

Because there is no clear line of demarcation to signal the unintentional waiver of the privilege by inference, the debtor is at risk to unwittingly allow access to both disclosed and undisclosed information.²⁰⁹ This may occur based ²⁰³ In re Hulon, 92 B.R. 670, 673 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1988) (waiver is not to be lightly inferred, and courts indulge every reasonable presumption against finding a testimonial waiver; waiver inferred if (1) the statements have created a significant likelihood that the finder of fact will be left with and prone to rely on a distorted view of the truth; and (2) the debtor had reason to know that her prior statements would be interpreted as a waiver) (citing Klein v. Harris, 667 F.2d 274, 287 (2d Cir. 1981)); but see Scarfia v. Holiday Bank, 129 B.R. 671, 675 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1990) (stating that a debtor is before the Bankruptcy Court voluntarily and is not entitled to as much consideration in being compelled to testify as another witness would who had no interest in the proceeding).

²⁰⁴ In re Hulon, 92 B.R. 670, 673 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1988) (waiver is not to be lightly inferred, and courts indulge every reasonable presumption against finding a testimonial waiver; waiver inferred if (1) the statements have created a significant likelihood that the finder of fact will be left with and prone to rely on a distorted view of the truth; and (2) the debtor had reason to know that her prior statements would be interpreted as a waiver) (citing Klein v. Harris, 667 F.2d 274, 287 (2d Cir. 1981)); but see Scarfia v. Holiday Bank, 129 B.R. 671, 675 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1990) (stating that a debtor is before the Bankruptcy Court voluntarily and is not entitled to as much consideration in being compelled to testify as another would who had no interest in the proceeding).

²⁰⁵ Norbank v. Kroh (In re Kroh), 87 B.R. 1004, 1005 (Bankr. W.D. Mo. 1988).

²⁰⁶ Id. at 1005.

²⁰⁷ Edmond v. Consumer Protection Div. (In re Edmond), 934 F.2d 1304, 1307-08 (4th Cir. 1991).

²⁰⁸ In re Jacques, 115 B.R. 272, 273 (D. Nevada 1990).

²⁰⁹ Charter Fed. Sav. Ass'n v. Rezak (In re Lederman), 140 B.R. 49, 54 (Bankr. E.D.N.Y. 1992) ("With regard to the requested items which may not have been previously disclosed, or to the extent that such commitment may not be legally on a witness' course of conduct or prior statements concerning the case and without an inquiry into whether or not the witness was aware of the privilege and chose to waive it consciously.²¹⁰

1. Depositions and 2004 examinations

The bankruptcy debtor is more at risk to unknowingly waive the privilege than the person in a custodial setting. The debtor may be deemed to have waived the privilege for purposes of a 2004 examination based on the debtor's having testified at an earlier deposition on incriminating matters despite the fact that her attorney did not advise her of the privilege or instruct her not to answer in the earlier deposition, and even though she was not aware at the time that the statements might be incriminating.²¹¹ In similar fashion, the debtor may have waived the privilege in bankruptcy proceedings by voluntarily answering questions and follow-up questions in earlier depositions regarding the same subject matter, despite the fact that counsel was not present at the depositions and the debtor was not informed of the privilege.²¹² In contrast, the failure to raise the privilege as an objection to subpoenaed documents has been held not to constitute a waiver.²¹³ Consequently, the likelihood of inadvertent waiver of the privilege by the debtor can be seen to increase dramatically depending on the circumstances.

The debtor's ability to waive the privilege inadvertently due to lack of knowledge of its existence places the uninformed debtor at a serious disadvantage when compared to her more informed counterpart. The debtor's loss of the privilege through the inadvertence or neglect of counsel highlights the critical importance of educating the individual debtor and counsel about the privilege. Without disclosure to the debtor of the existence of the privilege, the probability of inadvertent waiver and any ensuing negative consequences falls disproportionately on the poor, the learning disabled, the uneducated, and the debtor represented by ineffective counsel.²¹⁴ In other words, those in our society binding, the privilege has been lost or waived for failure to have raised it timely. As the Supreme Court held: 'a witness loses the privilege by failing to claim it properly even though the information being sought remains undisclosed when the privilege is claimed.'" (quoting Garner v. United States, 424 U.S. 648, 653 (1976)).

²¹⁰ Horowitz v. Sheldon (In re Donald Sheldon & Co.), 193 B.R. 152, 162 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1996) (citing Klein v. Harris, 667 F.2d 274, 287 (2d Cir. 1981)).

²¹¹ See supra note 9.

²¹² In re Cotillion Invs., Inc., 343 B.R. 344, 351-2 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 2006).

²¹³ DG Creditor Corp. v. Dabah (In re DG Acquisition Corp.), 151 F.3d 75 (2d Cir. 1998).

²¹⁴ One author characterizes the caselaw pertaining to learning disabled adults as follows:

who are least able to recover from the inadvertent waiver are the most likely to suffer the consequences. Aside from issues of due process and equal protection under the law, lack of notice of the waiver goes to the central issue of fundamental fairness that relates to the projected image and the perceived image of our system of justice as unbiased, impartial, and evenhanded.

Because legal entities are not considered persons for purposes of invoking the privilege, an individual's ability to claim the privilege may be affected by her prior testimony, actions and events regarding a legal entity. For instance, the debtor corporation's principal may not invoke her Fifth Amendment privilege to avoid answering questions at a 2004 examination²¹⁵ when she has previously pled guilty in a criminal court on the issues.²¹⁶ On the other hand, if the debtor's principal answers, "I don't know" or "I don't recall" to almost every question in an earlier deposition, the privilege may be preserved and claimed in a subsequent deposition despite the fact that it was not formally invoked on the earlier deposition.²¹⁷

2. Schedules

The law is well settled that if the debtor fails to invoke the privilege at the time she files her schedules, it is waived as to the facts shown, and the information will be admissible evidence against her in a criminal prosecution.²¹⁸ Because the debtor's schedules are required and must be filed with the petition, any potential for incrimination should be explained to the debtor prior to the filing. Otherwise, the debtor may inadvertently waive the privilege, be incriminated irreversibly, face criminal prosecution based on her own supplied evidence, and suffer a denial of her discharge. As stated above, the fact that the Colorado v. Connelly held that although the defendant was mentally ill, his waiver was voluntary, thus valid. The majority reasoned that the sole concern of the Fifth Amendment, on which Miranda was based, is governmental coercion. . . . The Court stated that under a due process analysis, beginning with Brown v. Mississippi, all cases deciding the constitutionality of a confession have contained a substantial element of police coercion. The Connelly Court stated that it is not the role of the Court to make "sweeping inquiries into the state of mind of a criminal defendant who has confessed" unless there is evidence of police coercion.

STEVEN A. GREENBURG, Learning Disabled Juveniles & Miranda Rights -- What Constitutes Voluntary, Knowing, & Intelligent Waiver, 21 GOLDEN GATE U. L. REV. 487, 494-95 (1991).

²¹⁵ FED. R. BANKR. P. 2004 (The court may order the examination of any entity.)

²¹⁶ In re Cassandra Group, 338 B.R. 600, 604 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2006).

²¹⁷ Horowitz v. Sheldon (In re Donald Sheldon & Co.), 193 B.R. 152 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1996).

²¹⁸ Ensign v. Pennsylvania, 227 U.S. 592 (1913); Czarlinsky v. United States, 54 F.2d 889, 893 (10th Cir. 1931), cert. denied, 285 U.S. 549 (1932).

debtor has not been properly advised by counsel or does not understand the privilege will not serve to avoid the waiver or minimize any damage resulting from the admissibility of the evidence.²¹⁹

3. The 341 Meeting

The Court in addressing the issue of waiver in the context of the first meeting of creditors has spoken plainly. If the debtor voluntarily testifies at the 341 meeting without invoking the privilege, she may waive the privilege for later proceedings as to all matters related to the scope of her testimony,²²⁰ whether or not her waiver was knowing and intelligent.²²¹ As noted above, the waiver is inferred when the statements create a significant likelihood that the judge or jury will be likely to rely on a distorted view of the truth, and the debtor has reason to know that her prior statements will be interpreted as a waiver.²²² Equally problematic is that a blanket invocation of the privilege is not a “proper assertion” and thus will not suffice to protect the debtor.²²³

D. The Dangers of Parallel Proceedings

A debtor faces a particular risk if she is exposed to parallel proceedings. Parallel proceedings are any simultaneous proceedings that are based on the same facts that serve as a basis for all of the claims.²²⁴ This situation arises

²¹⁹ See supra note 9.

²²⁰ Minnesota v. Murphy, 465 U.S. 420, 428 (1983) (if the debtor voluntarily testifies at the 341 meeting without invoking the privilege, she may waive the privilege for later proceedings as to all matters related to the scope of her testimony).

²²¹ Garner v. United States, 424 U.S. 648, 654-55 (1976) (knowing and intelligent waiver is not required in a noncustodial setting; “an individual may lose the benefit of the privilege [against self-incrimination] without making a knowing and intelligent waiver.”).

²²² In re Hulon, 92 B.R. 670, 673-75 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1988) (waiver inferred if (1) the statements have created a significant likelihood that the finder of fact will be left with and prone to rely on a distorted view of the truth; and (2) the debtor had reason to know that her prior statements would be interpreted as a waiver).

²²³ In re Connelly, 59 B.R. 421, 430 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1986) (finding that a blanket assertion of the privilege is not proper where debtor refused to answer 341 questions and had not scheduled creditors, debts, or assets, and liabilities, and where debtor provided no evidence of potential criminal investigation. The requisites for asserting the privilege are 1) a compelled disclosure; 2) found to be testimonial; and 3) incriminatory). See also In re Brandenburg, 2007 WL 117391 (blanket invocation not sufficient).

²²⁴ See 17 CFR 12.24 (defining parallel proceedings in the context of commodity and security exchanges as “[a] civil court proceeding, involving one or more of the respondents as a party, which is pending at the time the [other] complaint is filed and when the debtor is involved in a bankruptcy and a criminal proceeding at the same time. As explained below, the risk remains even when the debtor claims the Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination in both proceedings.²²⁵

Imagine a scenario in which a debtor in bankruptcy is also the subject of a criminal proceeding. If the debtor were involved only in the criminal proceeding, the prosecuting authority would be limited in its discovery of information.²²⁶ However, the trustee in bankruptcy is entitled to a wider berth during discovery in bankruptcy because of the mandate that the debtor file schedules and answer certain questions under oath.²²⁷ Therefore, the prosecuting authority could have access to information via the civil proceeding that it can use in the criminal proceeding.²²⁸

Under some circumstances, if the debtor's availability for examination by the trustee is in doubt, the debtor may be arrested by law enforcement officials, involves claims or counterclaims that are based on the same set of facts which serve as a basis for all of the claims in the reparations complaint"); CHRISTIAN BABICH, COMMENT: Parallel Proceedings: The Government's Double-Team Approach and the Degradation of Constitutional Protections, 11 LEWIS & CLARK L. REV. 753, 754 (2007); CARL H. LOEWENSON, JR., Morrison & Foerester LLP, Parallel Proceedings, at 1, <http://www.mofo.com/files/Publication/b72e0c65-297f-455f-a9bb-6e0b63eb28c2/Presentation/Publication/Attachment/bd3bc6f0-6563-4f4b-a3f2-0c18189b5d98/04PLIDO.pdf> (last visited 2/3/13) (defining parallel proceedings as "two or more investigations or actions, concerning allegations arising from the same (or substantially the same) set of facts, proceed simultaneously or successively against the same or related parties.").

²²⁵See infra note 225. See Walter P. Loughlin, Fighting on Two Fronts: Parallel Proceedings and Challenges at the Intersection of Criminal and Civil Law, The Metropolitan Corporate Counsel, 32 (Oct. 2006) <http://www.metrocorpocounsel.com/pdf/2006/October/32.pdf> (last visited 2/3/13) (outlining restrictions that courts have put on the government in parallel proceedings).

²²⁶FED. R. CRIM. P. 16; Middleton v. U.S., 401 A.2D 109, 115 (D.C. 1979) (emphasizing limits on discovery rights to the government in criminal cases based on 18 U.S.C. § 3500). See infra Part III(D)(2).

²²⁷11 U.S.C. § 521 (providing that the debtor shall perform certain duties including, but not limited to, filing a list of creditors, a schedule of assets and liabilities, a schedule of income and expenses, a statement of financial affairs, and a statement of intentions regarding secured property; further duties include furnishing the trustee copies of payroll records, a Federal tax return for the most recent tax year, and photo identification).

²²⁸One possible procedural remedy is for the bankruptcy court to stay the proceedings pending the outcome of the criminal proceedings so that the debtor can then proceed with confidence having finally resolved the related issues. See infra note 189.

held in custody until a detention hearing, and released only upon certain conditions.²²⁹ If the debtor's attorney is not sensitive to these issues, the debtor may be exposed to the unnecessary risk of criminal liability.²³⁰ Although courts have reacted negatively to the government's invocation of both civil and criminal processes in parallel proceedings, such conduct is not prohibited, and still presents a risk of inadvertent disclosure to a debtor.²³¹

I. Protective Orders and Grand Jury Subpoenas

The problematic nature of parallel proceedings can be seen in the procedural interplay between competing parties and the courts in separate civil and criminal actions. One example is when a grand jury subpoena duces tecum conflicts with a protective order.²³² The Courts of Appeal have sometimes reached different results in similar situations.²³³

In one instance, a protective order enforced by the bankruptcy court to quash a subpoena duces tecum from the United States Attorney was deemed a ²²⁹ FED. R. BANKR. P. 2005(c); 18 U.S.C. § 3142(a) – (g) (2006).

²³⁰ 68% of the 1,245,205 licensed attorneys in the U.S. are in private practice. (American Bar Association, Lawyer Demographics, available at http://www.americanbar.org/content/dam/aba/migrated/marketresearch/PublicDocuments/lawyer_demographics_2012_revised.authcheckdam.pdf) (last visited 1/30/13) The Martindale-Hubbell database lists 39,126 bankruptcy attorneys in the United States. Only 4,756 attorneys are listed as practicing both bankruptcy and criminal law. (<http://www.martindale.com/Results.aspx?ft=1&frm=free&afs=Bankruptcy> (last visited 1/30/13).) Arguably, those 4,756 attorneys are better prepared to raise the Fifth Amendment in bankruptcy because their practice would encounter it on a more regular basis.

²³¹ See Walter P. Loughlin, Fighting on Two Fronts: Parallel Proceedings and Challenges at the Intersection of Criminal and Civil Law, The Metropolitan Corporate Counsel, p.32 (Oct. 2006) <http://www.metrocorpcounsel.com/pdf/2006/October/32.pdf> (last visited 2/3/13) (outlining restrictions that courts have put on the government in parallel proceedings).

²³² FED. R. CIV. P. 26(c).

²³³ Compare Martindell v. ITT, 594 F.2d 291, 296 (2d Cir. 1979) (absent a showing of improvidence in the grant of a Rule 26(c) protective order or some extraordinary circumstance or compelling need a witness should be entitled to rely upon the enforceability of a protective order against any third parties), with In re Grand Jury Subpoena, 836 F.2d 1468, 1478 (4th Cir. 1988) (valid protective order was not sufficient grounds to quash the subpoena duces tecum), Grand Jury Proceedings (Williams) v. United States, 995 F.2d 1013, 1020 (11th Cir. 1993) (Rule 26(c) protective order does not shield relevant information from a later grand jury investigation), and In re Grand Jury Subpoena Served on Meserve, Mumper & Hughes, 62 F.3d 1222, 1227 (9th Cir. 1995) (adopting a per se rule that grand jury subpoenas take precedence over validly issued Rule 26(c) protective orders).

“de facto grant of immunity.”²³⁴ This result obtained despite the fact that the court acknowledged that the power to grant immunity is reserved to the Executive Branch.²³⁵ In one case, the court gave precedence to a grand jury subpoena over a validly issued protective order of discovery, and the debtor was ordered to produce incriminating documents.²³⁶

In yet another case, the court held that absent a showing of improvidence in the grant of a protective order, exceptional circumstance, or compelling need, a witness is entitled to rely on the enforceability of a protective order against any third parties, including the government.²³⁷ The court held that a protective order should not be vacated or modified merely to accommodate the state’s desire to inspect protected testimony for possible use in a criminal investigation, either as evidence or as the subject of a possible perjury charge.²³⁸

Even when the protective order is given precedence over the grand jury subpoena, the trier of fact may be permitted to use the silence of the witness for the relevant inference it creates.²³⁹ However, the Court has held that the witness may not be compelled against a valid assertion of the Fifth Amendment privilege to repeat prior “immunized testimony” verbatim without a contemporaneous assurance of immunity.²⁴⁰ The Court’s holding also extended to the compulsion of closely tracking testimony by the witness as it relates to prior “immunized testimony.”²⁴¹

2. Differences in Civil and Criminal Discovery

Neither party is obliged to reveal much information during the discovery process in criminal proceedings. Under the Federal Rules, a defendant in a criminal proceeding is entitled to receive only his own statements, his prior criminal record, items that are “material to preparing the defense,” items the government plans to use in its case-in-chief, and items belonging to or obtained ²³⁴ In re Grand Jury Subpoena (Under Seal), 836 F.2d 1468, 1475 (4th Cir. 1988) (protective order, when enforced by the bankruptcy court to quash a subpoena duces tecum from the U.S. Attorney works as a “de facto grant of immunity,” however, 6003(a) states that the power to choose who may receive immunity is exclusively within the Executive Branch.).

²³⁵ Id. at 1017.

²³⁶ United States v. Janet Greeson’s a Place for Us (In re Grand Jury Subpoena Served on Meserve), 62 F.3d 1222 (9th Cir. 1995).

²³⁷ Martindell v. ITT, 594 F.2d 291, 296 (2d Cir. 1979); See also In re Grand Jury Subpoena (Roach), 138 F.3d 442, 445 (1st Cir. 1998).

²³⁸ Id. at 296.

²³⁹ In re Grand Jury Subpoena, 836 F.2d 1468, 1476 (4th Cir. 1988), cert. denied, 487 U.S. 1240 (1988).

²⁴⁰ Pilsbury Co. v. Conboy, 459 U.S. 248, 261 (1983).

²⁴¹ Id. at 261.

from the defendant by the government.²⁴² Additionally, the defendant is only required to disclose evidence for her case-in-chief, and only where the defendant made a reciprocal request.²⁴³

However, in a civil action, both parties are entitled to discover much more information. In civil actions, both parties are entitled to all relevant, non-privileged material “reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence.”²⁴⁴ Thus, the scope of discovery in civil actions is often limited only by the zeal of the litigants. The evidentiary standard while perhaps excluding “witch hunts” may often fairly be characterized as a “fishing expedition.”²⁴⁵

Litigants are not required to prove that a line of inquiry will lead to admissible evidence.²⁴⁶ Instead, they are merely required to make a reasonable argument that the information could.²⁴⁷ In other words, access to information in the civil setting hinges on whether, in the estimation of the court, a litigant’s particular inquiry may arguably capture information that points towards admissible evidence. While this discovery rule leaves some information off limits, it rightfully encourages the parties’ search for the truth by providing a standard that is flexible, fluid and somewhat unpredictable.²⁴⁸

3. Discovery in Bankruptcy and the Risk of Loss of the Privilege

Bankruptcy has discovery provisions that are similar to other civil proceedings, but distinctive in many ways. Each form of discovery creates an opportunity for loss of the privilege. Unlike other civil proceedings, the Code requires the debtor to appear at a meeting convened by the United States Bankruptcy trustee for oral examination under oath.²⁴⁹ This meeting is similar to a public deposition and is referred to as the meeting of creditors or 341 meeting. The debtor in each case is subject to interrogation by any appearing creditor, the panel trustee, any examiner in the case, and the United States trustee.²⁵⁰

²⁴² FED. R. CRIM. P. 16 (a)(1); See Loewenson, supra note 218, at 24.

²⁴³ Id. But see Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963) (state has an obligation to furnish exculpatory evidence in their possession).

²⁴⁴ FED. R. CIV. P. 26 (b)(1); See Loewenson, supra note 218, at 24-25.

²⁴⁵ Wuterich v. Murtha, 562 F.3d 375, 386 (D.C. Cir. 2009); Hickman v. Taylor, 329 U.S. 495, 507 (1947).

²⁴⁶ Oppenheimer Fund, Inc. v. Sanders, 437 U.S. 340, 351, (1978) (emphasis added).

²⁴⁷ Id.

²⁴⁸ Eggleston v. Chicago Journeymen Plumbers' Local Union No. 130, U. A., 657 F.2d 890, 903 (7th Cir. 1981).

²⁴⁹ 11 U.S.C. § 341 (2006). See supra Part III, c. 3, The 341 Meeting

²⁵⁰ 11 U.S.C. § 343.

The scope of the examination is limited to “the acts, conduct, property, liabilities, and financial condition of the debtor, and any other matter that may affect the administration of the debtor’s estate or to the debtor’s right to a discharge.”²⁵¹ The Code description of the examination’s scope appears restrictive by use of the phrase “The examination...may relate only to...” yet when the provision is read in its entirety, the breadth of the permitted inquiry is notably sweeping and detailed.²⁵² Refusal or inability of the debtor to attend the 341 meeting, furnish information required by the Code, or cooperate with the trustee may result in dismissal of the bankruptcy, conversion, or denial of the discharge.²⁵³

In addition to the requirement that the debtor attend, submit to interrogation and testify at the 341 meeting, the court may order the examination of the debtor on the motion of any party in interest.²⁵⁴ Such examinations are often referred to as 2004 examinations and the breadth of the scope of inquiry is the same as for the 341 meeting.²⁵⁵ The attendance of the debtor at the examination may be compelled in the same manner as a witness at a trial in United States District Court.²⁵⁶ The court may designate that the debtor be examined at any time and place.²⁵⁷

4. The Debtor’s Failure to Appear, Incarceration, and the Need for Notice of the Privilege

The debtor may be held in custody and treated as a criminal in some instances even though no criminal charges have been made. If the debtor is deemed necessary for the proper administration of the estate and is alleged by ²⁵¹ FED. R. BANKR. P. 2004(b).

²⁵² Id.

²⁵³ 11 U.S.C. § 707 (a)(1) (providing that the court may dismiss a case under chapter 7 for cause including unreasonable delay by the debtor that is prejudicial to creditors). See § 707 HISTORICAL AND STATUTORY NOTES (clarifying that the causes listed are illustrative and not exhaustive). See also 11 U.S.C. § 521 (i)(4),(j)(1) (providing that the court may decline to dismiss the case if the debtor tried in good faith to file the required information and that the best interests of the creditors would be served by administration of the estate; or if the debtor failed to file a tax return that becomes due after commencement of the case, the court shall convert or dismiss the case whichever is in the best interests of the creditors add the estate). And see FED. R. BANKR. P. 4002.

²⁵⁴ FED. R. BANKR. P. 2004(a) (emphasis added).

²⁵⁵ FED. R. BANKR. P. 2004(b). See supra Part III, C, 1. Waiver of the Privilege – Depositions and 2004 Examinations

²⁵⁶ FED. R. BANKR. P. 2004(c); FED. R. BANKR. P. 9016 (incorporating by reference FED.R. CIV. P. 45 and thus providing for the form, issuance and service of subpoenas ad testificandum and duces tecum for trials, hearings and depositions).

²⁵⁷ FED. R. BANKR. P. 2004(d).

affidavit to be avoiding examination, the court may order law enforcement to bring the debtor to court without delay.²⁵⁸ The grounds for such an order include a sworn allegation that there is “reasonable cause to believe that the debtor is about to leave or has left her residence or her business; has evaded process that directs attendance at an examination; or has willfully disobeyed a subpoena or order to appear for examination.”²⁵⁹ Whenever the debtor is found in a judicial district other than that from which the order was issued, the debtor may be taken into custody and removed either to the court issuing the order or the nearest available United States magistrate judge, bankruptcy judge, or district judge.²⁶⁰

If the judge finds that the person in custody is the debtor, the debtor is released on conditions to insure her prompt appearance before the court that issued the order to compel attendance.²⁶¹ In deciding conditions to assure the debtor’s attendance for examination, obedience for further examination, and appearance for purposes of removal from another jurisdiction, the court is governed by the provisions and policies of the federal criminal code.²⁶² The applicable section with regard to release or detention pending trial provides a number of factors that the court must consider with an eye towards the imposition of the least restrictive means of securing the attendance of the debtor.²⁶³ In this circumstance, the debtor may be taken into custody, held until the detention hearing and in all respects dealt with as a criminal defendant pending her rebuttal of the allegations based on an affidavit.²⁶⁴ In this situation, the debtor is clearly in a custodial setting, albeit in a bankruptcy proceeding, and the debtor should be provided notice of her privilege against self-incrimination.²⁶⁵ Yet, despite the obvious need for notice, there is no provision that requires such notice be given.

²⁵⁸ FED. R. BANKR. P. 2005(a).

²⁵⁹ Id.

²⁶⁰ FED. R. BANKR. P. 2005(b).

²⁶¹ Id.

²⁶² FED. R. BANKR. P. 2005(c). See 18 U.S.C. § 3146(a)-(b) (defining the offense of failure to appear and providing for punishment for failure to appear in criminal proceedings).

²⁶³ 18 U.S.C. § 3142(a)-(g) (setting forth the court’s procedure in detention hearings in criminal proceedings and the factors to be considered).

²⁶⁴ FED. R. BANKR. P. 2005(c). See 18 U.S.C. § 3142(a)-(g) (setting forth the court’s procedure in detention hearings in criminal proceedings and the factors to be considered).

²⁶⁵ Miranda v. Arizona, 384 U.S. 436, 444 (1966) (an individual under custodial interrogation is entitled to warning (notice) of her right to remain silent or end questioning; right to attorney); Yarborough v. Alvarado, 541 U.S. 652 (2004) (holding that citizen is not in custody if a reasonable person in his situation would have felt free to “terminate the interrogation and leave”).

E. The Compulsion of Testimony

As noted above,²⁶⁶ immunity is a term of art in the law with many nuanced meanings depending on context.²⁶⁷ The types of immunity that are relevant for the purposes of this article are transactional immunity, use immunity and derivative use immunity. Transactional immunity is a grant of immunity that shields the witness from any exposure to criminal liability that is related to a particular transaction.²⁶⁸ Use immunity is more limited than transactional immunity. The witness is protected only from the “use” of the witness’ testimony in any criminal proceeding against the witness. The value of the privilege is reduced when use immunity, rather than transactional immunity, is used to supplant the debtor’s privilege because of the degree to which protection from criminal prosecution is lost.²⁶⁹ Derivative use immunity is closely related to use immunity. The use of evidence that is derived from the witness’ testimony, “fruits” of the immunized testimony, is denied to the state when the debtor is given derivative use immunity.²⁷⁰

The law has changed over time as it relates to the type of immunity that suffices to justify the compulsion of testimony in the face of the proper assertion of the privilege.²⁷¹ Under prior law, the debtor was allowed to refuse to answer incriminating questions even though the Bankruptcy Act (the Act) provided automatic *limited*²⁷² use immunity.²⁷³ The Act is the immediate predecessor to ²⁶⁶ See supra Part I E.

²⁶⁷ Congressional immunity, sovereign immunity, diplomatic immunity, and judicial immunity are beyond the scope of this article. Though each could touch the realm of bankruptcy practice, none lie at the heart of the author’s thesis.

²⁶⁸ Counselman v. Hitchcock, 142 U.S. 547, 586, (1892).

²⁶⁹ Kastigar v. United States, 406 U.S. 441, 466-67, (1972) (Douglas, J., dissenting).

²⁷⁰ Murphy v. Waterfront Comm’n of New York Harbor, 378 U.S. 52, (1964). (“[W]e hold the constitutional rule to be that a state witness may not be compelled to give testimony which may be incriminating under federal law unless the compelled testimony and its fruits cannot be used in any manner by federal officials in connection with a criminal prosecution against him.”)

²⁷¹ Counselman, 142 U.S. at 547 (required transactional immunity). Kastigar, 406 U.S. at 441 (1972) (overruled Counselman on that point and substituted use and derivative use immunity as a sufficient basis to compel testimony as against an asserter of the privilege).

²⁷² The immunity was limited in two ways. The protection afforded was restricted to the debtor’s testimony, not documents, and even the testimony could be used in hearings on objections to discharge. United States v. Seiffert, 501 F.2d 974, 981 (5th Cir. 1974). (“Nor does that immunity extend, as the appellant would have it, to certain of his books and records introduced in evidence against him at trial.”); Former 11 U.S.C. 25(a)(10) “[N]o testimony, or any evidence which is directly or indirectly derived from such testimony, given by him shall be offered in evidence the modern-day Code and required that the debtor testify in all circumstances.²⁷⁴ The debtor's refusal to answer any material question could result in the denial of the debtor's discharge.²⁷⁵ The debtor was expected to be forthcoming even on incriminating matters because the Act granted use immunity automatically without the necessity of the debtor's invocation of the privilege.²⁷⁶

Thus, the Court has altered the type of immunity necessary to compel testimony in the face of a proper assertion of the privilege. The Court has moved from a rule, mandating transactional immunity in exchange for "immunized testimony",²⁷⁷ to a rule permitting the compulsion of privileged testimony through use immunity and derivative use immunity.²⁷⁸ Debtors, debtors' counsel, and the courts have been affected in dramatically different ways by the Court's decisions and the exceptions to the exercise of the privilege that allow compulsion of incriminating documents after assertion of the privilege without a grant of immunity.²⁷⁹ against him in any criminal proceeding, except such testimony as may be given by him in the hearing upon objections to his discharge"

²⁷³ In re Rosser, 96 F. 305 (E.D. Mo. 1899) (debtor refused to answer certain questions before a referee on the ground of self-incrimination, and refusal allowed despite the fact that § 7 of the Bankruptcy Act gave use immunity to the debtor).

²⁷⁴ Former 11 USC § 25(a)(10) (debtor required to testify in all circumstances).

²⁷⁵ Former 11 USC § 32(c)(6) (refusal to answer material question was grounds for a denial of a discharge).

²⁷⁶ Former 11 USC § 25(a)(10) (statutory grant of use immunity).

²⁷⁷ Counselman, 142 U.S. at 585-86 (1892) (reasoning that no statute that leaves the party or witness subject to prosecution after he answers the incriminating question can supplant the privilege and holding that to be valid a statute was to afford absolute immunity against future prosecution for the offense to which the question relates).

²⁷⁸ Kastigar, 406 U.S. at 462 (1972) (immunity from use and derivative use is coextensive with the scope of the privilege and is sufficient to compel testimony over claim of privilege; in any subsequent criminal prosecution, the prosecution has the burden of proving affirmatively that evidence proposed is derived from a legitimate source wholly independent of compelled testimony).

²⁷⁹ Compulsion of the production of incriminating documents has been allowed after proper assertion of the privilege and without a grant of immunity thus creating exceptions to the exercise of the privilege under various theories including a corporate records exception, public records exception, a required records exception and an exception based on the assumption of custodial duties under a required regulatory regime. See respectively, Wilson v. United States, 221 U.S. 361, 380 (1911) (if corporate papers are records of an organization or "collective entity" with a duty to keep records, no Fifth Amendment privilege attached); In re Grand Jury Proceedings, 119 B.R. 945, 949-50 n. 4 (E.D. Mich. 1990) (documents that Chapter 7 trustee had to maintain in his official capacity as trustee of bankruptcy estate qualified as "public records," which trustee could be required to produce under

1. Procedure for the Grant of Immunity

Under Part V of title 18,²⁸⁰ whenever a witness refuses to testify in a court proceeding based on her privilege against self-incrimination, an Assistant United States Attorney must first seek the U.S. Attorney's permission to refer the matter to an Assistant Attorney General (AAG), and then must obtain the approval of the AAG for the Criminal Division or the AAG for the division of the Department of Justice accountable for the case.²⁸¹ If an AAG other than the AAG for the Criminal Division approves the request, the approval of the AAG for the Criminal Division is also necessary.²⁸² The Assistant U.S. Attorney may then file the necessary motion in the District Court requesting an order granting the debtor immunity related to that testimony.²⁸³

If use and derivative use immunity are granted, the debtor may not lawfully refuse to testify to those issues.²⁸⁴ However, no testimony or other information compelled under the order, or any information directly or indirectly derived from such testimony or information may be used against the debtor in any criminal case, except for prosecution for perjury, giving a false statement, or otherwise failing to comply with the order.²⁸⁵ The protection that the grant of use and derivative use immunity affords the debtor from exposure to criminal liability is beneficial but problematic.

public records exception to Fifth Amendment; In re Grand Jury Subpoena Duces Tecum Served Upon Underhill, 781 F.2d 64, 67(6th Cir. 1986); Balt. City Dept. of Social Services v. Bouknight, 493 U.S. 549, 555 (1990) (a person may not claim the Amendment's protections based upon the incrimination that may result from the "unadorned act of producing the child" or the "contents or nature of the thing demanded").

²⁸⁰ 18 U.S.C. § 6001 et. Seq. (2006).

²⁸¹ U.S. Dep't of Justice, U.S. Attorney's Manual § 9-23.110 to -310 (1992). As an alternative, informal or "hip pocket" immunity may be granted. The debtor should still be cautious of this form of immunity as it arises from no statutory provision, is discretionary with the prosecutor, and is not binding on any other jurisdiction. Courts have frowned upon the practice, but have accepted it as the promise not to prosecute is of value. United States v. Anderson, 778 F.2d 602, 606 (10th Cir. 1985) ("The propriety of using informal immunity has been frequently upheld. United States v. Winter, 663 F.2d 1120, 1133 (1st Cir.1981), cert. denied, 460 U.S. 1011 (1983); United States v. Librach, 536 F.2d 1228, 1230 (8th Cir. 1976), cert. denied, 429 U.S. 939 (1976); see also United States v. Peister, 631 F.2d 658, 662-63 (10th Cir.1980), cert. denied, 449 U.S. 1126 (1981).")

²⁸² U.S. Dep't of Justice, U.S. Attorney's Manual § 9-23.130 (1992).

²⁸³ 18 U.S.C. §§ 6002-6003 (2006); and see U.S. Dep't of Justice, U.S. Attorney's Manual § 9-23.310 (1992).

²⁸⁴ 18 U.S.C. § 6002.

²⁸⁵ Id.

As noted above, use and derivative use immunity combined do not provide the debtor the same level of protection as transactional immunity and leave her open to criminal sanctions based on evidence unrelated to the debtor's testimony. In addition, the grant of immunity does not prevent the use of the debtor's testimony to prove elements of a crime in the bankruptcy proceeding as a basis for denial of discharge.²⁸⁶ In short, the grant of use and derivative use immunity in the context of the bankruptcy proceedings may lessen the possibility that criminal charges may be brought and proven, but it does not fully protect the debtor from criminal punishment, civil liability, and a denial of discharge.

Considering the disadvantages the debtor faces if she testifies after the court issues a grant of immunity, the debtor might be tempted to refuse to testify despite a grant of immunity. That also is problematic. The debtor's refusal to testify after a grant of use and derivative use immunity is grounds for a global objection to discharge and a basis for the court's denial of discharge.²⁸⁷ In addition, the debtor's refusal to testify after a grant of immunity may subject her to contempt proceedings and sanctions including fines and imprisonment.²⁸⁸ In other words, whether the debtor testifies after a grant of use and derivative use immunity, or whether the debtor refuses to testify after a grant of use immunity, the debtor risks going to jail and a denial of discharge.²⁸⁹ What may seem a Hobson's choice²⁹⁰ is, for the truly innocent debtor, more akin to Sophie's choice,²⁹¹ and has been explored by commentators but largely ignored or accepted by Congress and the courts.²⁹²

²⁸⁶ In re Leslie, 119 F. 406,409 (N.D.N.Y. 1903).

²⁸⁷ 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(6).

²⁸⁸ In re Martin-Trigona, 732 F.2d 170 (2d Cir. 1984).

²⁸⁹ Analogously, in Garrity v. State of N.J., when the choice was imposed on police officers accused of conspiracy to obstruct justice to choose between self-incrimination and job forfeiture, the Court held that such coercion violated the privilege against self-incrimination. 385 U.S. 493, 496 (1967).

²⁹⁰ A Hobson's choice is a free choice with only one option offered.

²⁹¹ The term Sophie's choice, after the novel and film of the same name, refers to a choice between two unbearable options. Sophie's Choice was undeniably more horrific than the scenario posed here for Sophie Debtor.

²⁹² Craig Peyton Gaumer and Charles L. Nail, Jr., Truth of Consequences: The Dilemma of Asserting the Fifth amendment Privilege Against Self-Incrimination in Bankruptcy Proceedings, 76 NEB. L. REV. 497, 559-560 (1997); Bankruptcy Courts and the Reluctant Witness: Why A Rule 26(c) Protective Order Is Not A Substitute for A Grant of Immunity When the Witness Refuses to Testify Based Upon Fear of Criminal Prosecution, 25 CAL. BANKR. J. 180, 182 (2000); Allan B. Diamond and Erin E. Jones, Avoiding Litigation Pitfalls: An Introduction to the Fifth Amendment Privilege Against Self-Incrimination in Bankruptcy Proceedings, Am. Bankr. Inst. J., 20, 66 (2008); Leonard M. Shulman and Kara Germane, A Debtor's Right to Silence in A Bankruptcy Proceeding, ORANGE COUNTY LAW., 46, 47 (2005).

If the United States Attorney does not request immunity for the debtor, or if immunity is not offered, then the debtor may refuse to testify, invoking her Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination, and retain her right to a discharge.²⁹³ A debtor may invoke her right in response to incriminating questions both during discovery and at trial.²⁹⁴ As noted earlier, current bankruptcy law under the Code specifically provides for the preservation of the privilege, though unlike its predecessor Act, the grant of immunity is not automatic.²⁹⁵

2. Practical considerations

The statistical probability of an offer of immunity is small.²⁹⁶ It is unlikely that a request for immunity by the trustee or the United States Attorney will be made, and any request may be denied by the Assistant U.S. Attorney or the district court. Often there is a sense that a successful objection to discharge can be accomplished without the testimonial information that a grant of immunity would compel. Likewise, a United States Attorney may prefer to prosecute with the available evidence rather than suffer the proof burden of establishing that the state's case is not comprised of the debtor's testimony or any fruits (evidence) derived from that testimony.

IV. THE FORM OF REFORM TO PROTECT THE PRIVILEGE

A. Revision of Official Form B201A Notice to Individual Debtors

The pro se debtor and the debtor with counsel need notice of the Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination. All debtors should be advised of the existence of the privilege and should be given some sense of its scope and its limitations. Pre-filing disclosures relevant to invocation and waiver and the potential consequences of each would serve the purposes of the rules of bankruptcy procedure and promote the ends of justice.²⁹⁷ Some may seize on ²⁹³ In re Hulon, 92 B.R. 670, 673 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1988); In re Girdaukas, 92B.R. 373, 376 (Bankr. E.D. Wis. 1988); In re Connelly, 59 B.R. 421, 426 & 430 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1986); Chrysler Capital Corp. v. Salzman (In re Salzman), 61 B.R. 878, 889 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1986); Turner v. Wlodarski (In re Minton Group, Inc.), 43 B.R. 705, 709 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1984).

²⁹⁴ Grand Jury Proceedings (Williams), 995 F.2d 1013, 1018 n.11 (11th Cir. 1993).

²⁹⁵ 11 U.S.C. § 344 (2006).

²⁹⁶ This assertion is based on the author's observations as a deputy prosecuting attorney, bankruptcy trustee, judge, and practitioner for over 36 years and conversations with trustees and government attorneys.

²⁹⁷ FED. R. BANKR. P. 1001.

this proposal as a Miranda warning for the debtor and argue it exceeds the mandate of Miranda because the proceedings are not custodial or criminal. Aside from the fact that the proceedings may be custodial,²⁹⁸ the author's thesis is not that Miranda should apply even in a noncustodial setting. The author's thesis is that the privilege exists as a constitutional right in bankruptcy, and that it has value and utility to debtors. Therefore, as a matter of adjudicative policy, the Court in its inherent power should preserve the liberties of persons entitled to the privilege through disclosure of the right.

To accomplish this result a new proposal for an Official Form should be promulgated by the Judicial Conference of the United States pursuant to its authority under FRBP 9009. In the interim, the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts should issue additional forms for use under the Code pursuant to FRBP 9009.²⁹⁹ The proposed form should be construed to be consistent with the rules and the Code and secure the "just, speedy, and inexpensive determination of every case and proceeding."³⁰⁰

1. The Status Quo

Current law mandates that the Official Forms offer several notices and warnings to the consumer debtor. The first notice is regarding the opportunities for credit counseling, budget analysis, and instruction on financial management.³⁰¹ The second notice advises the consumer debtor of the four chapters of the Bankruptcy Code that may be available as filing options and briefly outlines the nature of each chapter.³⁰² In the third numbered paragraph of the Official Form, the debtor is warned that the criminal penalties for the fraudulent concealment of assets, perjury and false swearing include fines, imprisonment, or both.³⁰³

This notice regarding criminal conduct and penalties is immediately followed by the disclosure that "All information supplied by a debtor...is subject to examination by...the Department of Justice."³⁰⁴ Finally, in a section labeled "WARNING" Official Form B201A concludes by disclosing that Section 521(a)(1) of the Code requires the debtor to promptly file detailed information

²⁹⁸ See supra Part III.D.4

²⁹⁹ Information on the Administrative Office of the United States Courts is online at <http://www.uscourts.gov/FederalCourts/UnderstandingtheFederalCourts/BankruptcyCourts.aspx>. The current Director is Judge Thomas F. Hogan. Judge Hogan is the chief administrative officer for the federal courts and secretary to the Judicial Conference of the United States.

³⁰⁰ FED. R. BANKR. P. 1001.

³⁰¹ 11 U.S.C. § 342(b), FEDERAL R. BANKR. P. 9009. See Official Form B201A.

³⁰² Id.

³⁰³ Id.

³⁰⁴ Id.

regarding creditors, assets, liabilities, income, expenses and her general financial condition. This paragraph warns the debtor that her bankruptcy case may be dismissed if this information is not filed with the court within the time deadlines set by the Code, Rules and local rules. The debtor is directed to a website address for Official Form B200 which provides a listing of the documents and deadlines.³⁰⁵

The debtor's attorney must certify delivery of the required notices and the debtor must affirm that she has received and read the notices.³⁰⁶ The requirement of these and other notices to the debtor by Congress and the Court, make clear the importance current law places on the disclosure to the debtor of the opportunities to avoid bankruptcy, potential bankruptcy filing options, the possibilities for criminal exposure, criminal penalties, the availability of documents for inspection by the DOJ, the requirements for disclosure, and risk of dismissal.³⁰⁷ It seems illogical that given the present breadth and depth in the level of specificity of notices to the debtor, that the Code, Rules and Official Forms should be strangely silent regarding the debtor's privilege against self-incrimination. This is particularly true in the light of the evidentiary value of the privilege and its relative importance when compared to the notices pertaining to statutory rights and criminal penalties.

2. A Modest Proposal for Change

As a policy matter, the notion that each of these mandated notices and warnings are more critical to the consumer debtor than the disclosure of the privilege is untenable. Although disclosure of the existence of the privilege is not required under current law, there is no prohibition of notice. When consideration is given to the constitutional origins and evidentiary value of the privilege, particularly to the pro se debtor, the absence of notice is alarming and difficult to understand.³⁰⁸ Although traditionally in bankruptcy, pro se litigants

³⁰⁵ Id.

³⁰⁶ 11 U.S.C. § 342(b), FED. R. BANKR. P. 9009. See Official Form B201B.

³⁰⁷ Id. And See Official Form B201A.

³⁰⁸ Studies show the demographics for pro se debtors in state courts to include a higher incidence among the young, the poor, the less educated, women and minorities. Ayn Crawley, Trends in Pro Se Litigation, Maryland Legal Assistance Network. (Statewide statistics of over 40,000 self-represented users of programs in Maryland in 2002 show: 60% were women; 44% described themselves as African American and 9% as Hispanic; the vast majority had modest incomes.) <http://www.ncsconline.org/wc/publications/memos/prosestatsmemo.htm#other> (last visited 2/3/13). For other studies that show a disproportionate number of women and minorities, see Beck, Connie J.A., et al., Divorce Mediation With and Without Legal Representation: A Focus on Intimate Partner Violence and Abuse, Family Court Review, 48(4): 631-645, October 2010. <http://courtdr.org/library/> are assumed to be less educated than debtors who are represented, the opposite is true. The pro se debtor is also more educated than the general pro se population.³⁰⁹ The higher level of education, coupled with the publication and availability of the official forms, engenders a hubris in the consumer debtor. The resulting overconfidence when combined with the easy availability of the forms tempts the pro se debtor to file a complex federal proceeding that is beyond the debtor's expertise.³¹⁰ As a consequence, the pro se debtor often discovers belatedly that the filing was ill advised and will be dismissed or have unintended results. The proof of this phenomenon can be seen in the relative success rates between pro se and represented filers in obtaining a discharge.³¹¹ Pro se filers are ten times less likely to obtain a discharge.³¹²

A procedure for disclosure of the right to the privilege currently exists, albeit in the context of another federal civil proceeding.³¹³ For more than two decades, the federal administrative rules have been used to mandate that notice of the privilege be given by the Department of Justice to respondents in proceedings to assess civil penalties for possession of small amounts of certain controlled substances.³¹⁴ Thus, there is a precedent, a form, and a format in use by federal authorities in civil proceedings that provide a template for the construction of a similar notice in the bankruptcy context.³¹⁵ The adoption of the view.php?ID=5797 (last visited 2/3/13). And see Chanley S. Painter, 2011 Capstone Project, Exploring the Problem of Self-Represented Litigants in Arkansas Civil Courts, Arkansas Access to Justice Commission in partnership with the Clinton School of Public Service. <http://www.arkansasjustice.org/sites/default/files/Capstone%20Report%20-%20AAJC%20Final.pdf> (last visited 2/3/13).

³⁰⁹ ANGELA LITWIN, BROKE: HOW DEBT BANKRUPTS THE MIDDLE CLASS 157-158 (Stanford University Press) Katherine Porter, editor (2012) Results based on the 2007 Consumer Bankruptcy Project. For possible explanations of this phenomenon, see Joseph Callanan, Pro Se Bankruptcy Filings Growing Faster than Other Debtor Relief, Litigation News, December 29, 2011, available at http://apps.americanbar.org/litigation/litigationnews/top_stories/010312-pro-se-bankruptcy-growing.html

(last visited 2/3/13).

³¹⁰ Id.

³¹¹ Id.

³¹² Id.

³¹³ 21 U.S.C. § 844(a) (2006); 28 C.F.R. § 76.4 (b)(2) (2007) (stating that the Notice of Intent to Assess a Civil Penalty will advise the respondent that any statement given may be used against the person in any proceeding, including criminal prosecution and that the respondent may be able to assert a privilege such as the privilege against self-incrimination.)

³¹⁴ Id.

³¹⁵ 21 U.S.C. § 844(a) (2006); 28 C.F.R. 76.9 (c)(2)-(3) (2007) (providing that the content of any answer filed by a respondent may contain a statement that an wording presently in use could easily be adapted to provide a new category for the proposed revision of Official Form B201A to read as follows:

4. Notice to the Individual Consumer Debtor of the right to invoke privileges, including the privilege against self-incrimination- Any statement given during the course of proceeding or documents filed in the proceedings may be used against the person in this or any other proceeding, including any criminal prosecution. Each individual debtor may be able to assert a privilege, such as the privilege against self-incrimination. Any petition, schedule, statement, or pleading required to be filed or contested by the debtor in a responsive pleading shall include a statement that the respondent admits, denies, does not have and is unable to obtain sufficient information to admit or deny each allegation, or that an answer to the allegation is protected by a privilege, including the privilege against self-incrimination. A statement of lack of information or a statement that the answer to the allegation is privileged shall have the effect of a denial.

This simple proposal for an addition to a revised Official Form B201A will go far in eliminating the dangers that presently lurk for the uninformed debtor. Whether the individual is an uneducated pro se debtor or a represented debtor whose attorney has neglected to inform her of her rights, the harm is the same. No debtor should be denied her Fifth Amendment right to the privilege against self-incrimination due to personal ignorance or professional neglect.

The Court, under its inherent authority and pursuant to federal law,³¹⁶ should adopt a revised Official Form B201A to provide notice of the debtor's privilege against self-incrimination as numbered paragraph 4 of the current form. The form should be promulgated by the Judicial Conference of the United States pursuant to its authority under FRBP 9009.³¹⁷ The revised form would help to insure that the debtor is aware of the privilege prior to filing. In the interim, the Director of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts should issue the revised form for use under the Code.³¹⁸ The Court's action is necessary to afford the debtor, who appears before the DOJ trustee in bankruptcy, the same notice that is currently provided to a civil litigant who is targeted by the DOJ for an assessment of civil penalties for possession of certain controlled substances.³¹⁹ answer to the allegation is protected by a privilege, including the privilege against self-incrimination, and that such a statement shall have the effect of a denial.).

³¹⁶ 28 U.S.C. § 2075 (2006).

³¹⁷ FED. R. BANKR. P. 9009

³¹⁸ Id.

³¹⁹ See supra notes 21 and 24.

B. The Rulemaking Process

Proposed amendments to the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy are handled by a time proven and statutorily sanctioned process.³²⁰ The process is the same for proposed amendments to the Federal Rules of Appellate, Civil, and Criminal Procedure, and the Federal Rules of Evidence.³²¹ There are seven steps in the process of amending the Code. The first step in the process is the initial consideration by the Advisory Committee.³²² Next is the publication and public comment period, followed by consideration of the public comments and final approval by the Advisory Committee. The fourth step is the approval by the Standing Committee, followed by Judicial Conference Approval. Next, the United State Supreme Court must give its approval, and finally there must be Congressional Review and the implementation of the rules.³²³

As of the date of this publication, there are no completed rules or pending rules that address the issues surrounding the provision of notice to individual debtors of their Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination.³²⁴ All of those involved in the rulemaking process have a tremendous responsibility. Debtors and lawyers, no less than other citizens, are beneficiaries of the Court's efforts to preserve and protect the rights of all parties in our system of justice. That effort includes the preservation and protection of ³²⁰United States Courts, A Summary for the Bench and Bar, <http://www.uscourts.gov/RulesAndPolicies/FederalRulemaking/RulemakingProcess/SummaryBenchBar.aspx> (last visited 2/3/13) The statutory authority is based on the Rules Enabling Act 28 U.S.C §§ 2071 – 2077.

³²¹ United States Courts, Overview, <http://www.uscourts.gov/rulesandpolicies/rules.aspx> (last visited 2/3/13)

³²² The composition of the Advisory Committee on Bankruptcy Rules and contact information is online at the United States Courts website http://www.uscourts.gov/uscourts/RulesAndPolicies/rules/Members_List_Oct_2011.pdf (last visited 2/3/13). The current chair is the Honorable Eugene R. Wedoff, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge, Chicago, Illinois.

³²³ One may argue that any change in Official Form B201A must be preceded by a statutory amendment to 11 U.S.C. 342(b) because that provision is the statutory authority for the publication of the notices contained in B201A. The author concedes that the argument is not without merit, and that statutory amendment is desirable; however, the disclosure of the privilege included in the DOJ notice was authorized by administrative rule without the necessity of Congressional action. The counterargument is that because the privilege originates in the Constitution, no statutory authority is needed for the Court to make that fact known as a matter of adjudicatory policy through its rulemaking authority.

³²⁴ United States Courts, Pending Rules Amendments, <http://www.uscourts.gov/rulesandpolicies/rules/pending-rules.aspx> (last visited 2/3/13).

the rights of debtors and the institutionalization of principles of fundamental fairness in the bankruptcy courts.

CONCLUSION

The adverse consequences for even one truly innocent debtor, however seemingly guilty, are disproportionately harsh. The protection of the privilege for the presumptively innocent is equally important and its loss, equally harsh. This is particularly true when the protection of every debtor from the inadvertent loss of the privilege can be so easily accomplished. The current system perpetuates nondisclosure and allows the unrepresented, uneducated debtor to be victimized by her own ignorance or the inadvertence of counsel. In both instances the integrity and respectability of our system of justice are needlessly impugned.

The cost of adding a disclosure to the debtor regarding her Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination means revising a mass produced form to include a fourth paragraph on the lower half of the second page in an otherwise blank space. This would be an unburdensome measure that would go far in preserving one of our most fundamental constitutional rights. The preservation of that right and its value to an innocent debtor, however seemingly guilty, is immeasurable. The value to the presumptively innocent is critical as well.

Only when the innocent debtor who is but seemingly guilty receives notice of her constitutional right to the evidentiary privilege against self-incrimination will the rules in bankruptcy proceedings “secure the just...determination of every case and proceeding.” Only then will the privilege take its rightful place alongside bankruptcy’s mandated notices regarding the availability of credit counseling services, bankruptcy chapter filing options, bankruptcy crimes, and the availability of bankruptcy papers to law enforcement officials. Until that time pro se debtors and debtors with counsel will remain vulnerable to the loss of the privilege in criminal proceedings because of nondisclosure. The existing form highlights the opportunity for law enforcement review, investigation and prosecution of all documents and related matters.³²⁵ Without notice, debtors will face the loss of a privilege scrupulously preserved and guarded throughout our history in the protection of the constitutional rights of even the worst criminals.

The debtor, who may be among our poorest citizens, should not discover in the course of her bankruptcy that she has unwittingly forfeited one of her fundamental constitutional rights.³²⁶ To avoid this result, Official Form B201A

³²⁵ Official Form B201A, FED. R. BANKR. P. 9009, 11 U.S.C. §342(b).

³²⁶ Total consumer (nonbusiness) filings for the 12-month period ending September 30, 2011, were 1,417,326 comprising 97% of all bankruptcy filings. See Table F-2 U.S. Bankruptcy Courts-Business and Nonbusiness Cases Commenced, by Chapter of the Bankruptcy Code, during the 12-Month Period Ending September 30, 2011.

should be revised in a simple, straightforward way by providing notice of the privilege to all individual debtors prior to the time of filing.

A revision of Official Form B201A to include notice of the privilege will benefit the attorneys who represent debtors as well. History reveals how fluid the privilege and the law surrounding it can be.³²⁷ The privilege, like the law itself, is a moving stream with waters that rise and recede and sometimes overflow the banks to course where they will. Skilled counsel, like experienced boatmen, do well to observe the weather before braving the currents with those entrusted to their care.

http://www.uscourts.gov/uscourts/Statistics/BankruptcyStatistics/BankruptcyFilings/2011/0911_f2.pdf (last visited 2/3/13). 2007 through 2010 inclusive filings are available at the United States Courts website, <http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics/BankruptcyStatistics.aspx> (last visited 2/3/13).

³²⁷ See supra Part I.E.

APPENDIX A

Trustee: Do you solemnly swear or affirm to tell the whole truth?
Sophie: I do.
Trustee: Please state your name for the record.
Sophie: My name is Sophie Debtor and I'm from Hard Luck Town.
Trustee: Did you read your voluntary petition and schedules?
Sophie: Yes.
Trustee: Does it include all your property?
Sophie: Yes.
Trustee: Have you listed all of your debts?
Sophie: No. I recently discovered a credit card bill.
Trustee: What's the bill for?
Sophie: Cash advances and jewelry.
Trustee: When were these transactions?
Sophie: Within the past 60 days.
Trustee: How much were they?
Sophie: The advance was $1000 and the jewelry was also $1000.
Trustee: Do you have the cash or the jewelry?
Sophie: No.
Trustee: What did you do with these items?
Sophie: My husband gave them to someone without my permission.
Trustee: Where are they?
Sophie: Corrie Delecti's apartment in Hard Luck Town.
Trustee: Is that the woman who was recently murdered?
Sophie: Yes.
Trustee: How do you know the cash advances and jewelry are there?
Sophie: My estranged husband told me.
Trustee: Have you amended your schedule to reflect these transactions?
Sophie: No.
Trustee: Will you do so?
Sophie: Yes.