Hilton M. Briggs Library and South Dakota State University celebrated 125 years of government information service to the state of South Dakota in 2014. The library has been a member of the Federal Depository Library Program since 1889 when South Dakota became a state. Hilton M. Briggs Library is the largest depository library in South Dakota providing government information services and a collection of over 663,000 government publications in tangible and online formats.

Stated Authority

“AN ACT to provide for the division of Dakota into two States and to enable the people of North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, and Washington to form constitutions and State governments to be admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States, and to make donations of public lands to such states.”. (25 U.S. Statutes at Large)

On Nov. 2, 1889, President Benjamin Harrison signed almost identical statehood proclamations that created North Dakota and South Dakota. Harrison covered and shuffled the documents before and after signing them. He proudly declared, “They were born together – they are one and I will make them twins.” (South Dakota State News, September 25, 2014)
